Egypt's agricultural development Urban Informality Ananya Roy, Nezar AlSayyad, 2003-11-22 The turn of the century has been a moment of rapid urbanization. Much of this urban growth is taking place in the cities of the developing world and much of it in informal settlements. This book presents cutting edge research from various world regions to demonstrate these trends. The contributions reveal that informal housing is no longer the domain of the urban poor; rather, it is a significant zone of transactions for the middle class and even transnational elites. Indeed, the book presents a rich view of urban informality as a system of regulations and norms that governs the use of space and makes possible new forms of social and political power. The book is organized as a transnational endeavor. It brings together three regional domains of research: the Middle East, Latin America, and South Asia, that are rarely in conversation with one another. It also unsettles the hierarchy of development and underdevelopment by looking at some First World processes of informality through a Third World research lens.

Negm, Mohamed Ali Bek, Sommer Abdel-Fattah, 2018-12-12 Egyptian coastal lakes and wetlands are among the most productive wetland ecosystems in the world. This volume explores their current status and how it can be maintained and improved. It describes the five Northern coastal lakes, their origin, physical and chemical properties, and current development activities and discusses the challenges facing these lakes, such as shrinking, pollution, degradation, and adaptive management. Further topics include hydrodynamics and modeling techniques as well as strategies for the sustainable development of these valuable resources. The book closes with a concise summary of the conclusions and recommendations presented in the chapters. As such, it offers an invaluable resource for the academic community and postgraduate students as well as for environmental managers and policymakers.
