Problematizing Religious Freedom Arvind Sharma,2011-08-08 The concept of religious freedom is the favoured modern human rights concept with which the modern world hopes to tackle the phenomenon of religious pluralism as our modern existence in an electronically shrinking globe comes to be increasingly characterised by this phenomenon To begin with the concept of religious freedom as embodied in Article 18 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights seems self evident in nature It is the claim of this book however that although emblematic on the one hand the concept is also problematic on the other and the implications of the concept of religious freedom are far from self evident despite the ready acceptance the term receives as embodying a worthwhile goal This book therefore problematizes the concept along legal constitutional ethical and theological lines and especially from the perspective of religious studies so that religious freedom in the world could be enlarged in a way which promotes human flourishing a variety of religions this book considers how these religions have intersected with a variety of disabilities across space and time This book provokes thought and discussion around important questions including how different disabilities are perceived represented and constructed in different dimensions of religion how and why people with disabilities engage with religion potential or documented barriers that religions present to disabled people and opportunities and insights that result when each is viewed through the lens of the other It will be essential reading for all students of Religion and Disability
