The South and Sustainable Development Conundrum, 2002      Environment and Development Conundrum Kumar Bar Das, 1992 Contributed papers      Risk Conundrums Roger E Kasperson, 2017-07-14 A risk conundrum can be viewed as a risk that poses major issues in assessment and whose management is not easily engaged. Such perplexing problems can either paralyze or badly delay risk analysis and directions for progression. Rather than simply focusing on the progress in risk analysis that has already been made, it is crucial to consider what has been learnt about these seemingly unmanageable problems and how best to move forward. Risk Conundrums seeks to answer this question by bringing together a range of key thinkers in the field to explore key issues such as risk communication, uncertainty, social trust, indicators and metrics, and risk management drawing upon case study examples including natural disasters, terrorism and energy transitions. The initial chapters address risk conundrums, their properties and the challenges they pose. The book then turns to a greater emphasis on systemic and regional risk conundrums. Finally, it considers how risk management can be changed to address these unsolvable conundrums. Alternative pathways are defined and scrutinized and predictions for future developments set out. This book will be of great interest to students and scholars of risk governance, environmental policy and sustainable development.

Governing the Rainforest Eve Z. Bratman, 2019 Sustainable development is among the foremost ideas that guide societal aspirations around the world. This text interrogates the concept through a critical lens examining both its history and the trajectory of its manifestations in the Brazilian Amazon.

Time, Climate Change, Global Racial Capitalism and Decolonial Planetary Ecologies Anna M. Agathangelou, Kyle D. Killian, 2022-06-23 This book probes the interconnections of time and ecology in order to spark our imagination and inspire us to re-think the planetary ecology and otherwise. It presents debates that interrogate and elucidate the anxieties of the known and the unknown of this world and the planetary beyond, sifting through temporal accounts of the Anthropocene, human beings and climate change. The chapters in this edited volume spur conversations with different thought systems and their underlying assumptions about the composition of structures of time and contingent temporalities. The authors engage rising temperatures in the oceans and air, the consequences intended and unintended of investments in various forms of development and the potential catastrophe unfolding in real time. Recent temporal strategies such as mitigation and adaptation to the climate crisis are challenged as they further compound and commodify the inquiry, the understanding and responses to environmental degradations, extractions and displacements. Anti-colonial and decolonial debates about the structures of time, the planetary and ecology are crucial contributions of this volume. Further privileging the vantage points of the colonized and enslaved, the authors of this volume challenge dominant universal, cyclical and retrospective structures of time and the planetary. Through research, poetry, art and popular cultural analyses, the authors attend to the ways that the struggles of the submerged indigenous and black communities for climate justice become coded as a global warming crisis. This volume grapples with how racial climate struggles and unrest become mobilized both as a source of paralysis and as an opportunity for further expropriation and expansion of data accumulation markets for settler planetary projects all in the name of global warming Ultimately the authors in this volume argue that conventional attempts at exploiting the planetary all depend upon ideas of conquest and the mastery and control of ecologies global governance and individual behaviors In this sense fears about the unknown future of our planet miss what is at stake in the structures of time the question of creation and invention The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of the journal Globalizations Agriculture, Environment and Development Antonio Augusto Rossotto Ioris, Bernardo Mançano Fernandes, 2022-11-21 The Second Edition of this book is completely revised and updated throughout providing an overview of current challenges faced within the area of Agri food in relation to policymaking ecological conservation and socio environmental justice Including a range of new chapters the book explores some of the conceptual and analytical gaps that are presented by current approaches to this topic The series of interconnected chapters offers a critical reinterpretation of the tensions associated with the failures of mainstream regulatory regimes land and resource grabbing and the impacts of global agri food chains at local regional and inter sectoral scales The book also examines past legacies and emerging challenges associated with agriculture modernisation politico spatial disputes climate change social movements gender ethnicity and education It likewise addresses the transformative potential of different combinations of biophysical socio technical and socio spatial practices of food sovereignty

Who Will Build the Ark? Benjamin Kunkel, Lola Seaton, 2023-06-27 In Who Will Build the Ark? leading radical thinkers debate left alternatives to runaway global heating capitalist crisis and wider environmental breakdown clarifying the stakes in today's key disputes between Green New Deal supporters and proponents of degrowth In a series of landmark texts first published by New Left Review Herman Daly and Benjamin Kunkel discusses the possibility of an egalitarian steady state economy while Robert Pollin warns against the worldwide slump degrowth could bring and calls instead for a single issue campaign 2 per cent of global GDP dedicated to the switch to renewable energy as the swiftest solution to the emissions crisis Nancy Fraser envisages an eco socialist exit from capitalism's multifold crises while Troy Vettese advocates eco austerity and half earth rewilding Lola Seaton draws out the strategic implications of these contested perspectives in a set of unavoidable green questions In the realm of contemporary politics Alyssa Battistoni writes on the dead end of COP diplomacy Cdric Durand asks whether energy shortages will derail the transition away from fossil fuels and Thomas Meaney compares Green New Deal proposals to the pinched reality of Biden's Inflation Reduction Act. The world's major powers accept the likelihood of dangerous climate change yet seem incapable of averting it. Can radical green models generate the social leverage needed to do so? Or as Mike Davis puts it, 'Who will build the Ark?' Research Handbook on EU Energy Law and Policy Rafael Leal-Arcas, 2024-09-06 This thoroughly revised second edition presents a comprehensive overview of the most important contemporary research in EU energy law and policy. Environmental accounts and empirical analyses provide operational concepts and measures of the sustainability of economic performance and growth. The text raises doubts however about the measurability of sustainable development. Further reading sections are provided at the end of each chapter. Negotiating Climate Change in Public Discourse Guofeng Wang, Changpeng Huan, 2025-02-12 This book critically analyses how diverse Parties and non Party stakeholders such as subnational governments, cities, states, foundations, NGOs, civil society, multilateral organizations and the private sector promote climate actions through linguistic and visual symbols across multiple platforms, unveiling the underlying ideologies within these discourses. Chapters in this volume employ methods from critical discourse studies (CDS) to explore the interplay between the material realities of climate change and the discursive communication among various Parties and non Party stakeholders through multimodal approaches across multiple platforms. They draw on discourses such as the UN speeches, UN documents, EU green deal policy, official documents submitted by African countries to the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change (UNFCCC) and news reports in China and Australia. The research presented utilizes and revisits diverse social and linguistic concepts to better inform the use of linguistic and/or visual symbols in different types of public discourse. This timely volume takes the field a step further by showing the importance of carrying out more international research to expand our knowledge of the global, regional and local discourse and ideologies that shape what we come to know and understand as climate change and how it is to be addressed. It will bring significant theoretical, methodological and empirical insights into the relations between language use, discursive practice and social practice. This book was originally published as a special issue of Critical Discourse Studies.
