Environment And The Developing World:

Environment and the Developing World Avijit Gupta, Mukul G. Asher, 1998-08-04 Most of the developing countries are located near the tropics which determine the success or failure of sustainable development strategies in these regions This environmental study focuses on the developing world integrating physical biological discussion with social development analysis It discusses project evaluation techniques practiced by the UNDP and the World Bank two agencies that sponsor a number of development projects It aims to introduce economic and political issues to students with an environmental science background and links environmental and development considerations in the context of the Third World Green

Development Bill Adams, 2019-12-05 The concept of sustainability lies at the core of the challenge of environment and development and the way governments business and environmental groups respond to it Green Development provides a clear and coherent analysis of sustainable development in both theory and practice Green Development explores the origins and evolution of mainstream thinking about sustainable development and offers a critique of the ideas behind them It draws a link between theory and practice by discussing the nature of the environmental degradation and the impacts of development It argues that ultimately green development has to be about political economy about the distribution of power and not about environmental quality Its focus is strongly on the developing world The fourth edition retains the broad structure of previous editions but has been updated to reflect advances in ideas and changes in international policy Greater attention has been given to the political ecology of development market based and neoliberal environmentalism and degrowth This fully revised edition discusses the origins of thinking about sustainability and sustainable development and its evolution to the present day the ideas that dominate mainstream sustainable development including natural capital the green economy market environmentalism and ecological modernisation critiques of mainstream ideas and of neoliberal framings of sustainability and alternative ideas about sustainability that challenge business as usual thinking such as arguments about limits to growth and calls for degrowth the dilemmas of sustainability in the context of forests desertification food and farming biodiversity conservation and dam construction the challenge of policy choices about sustainability particularly between reformist and radical responses to the contemporary global dilemmas Green Development offers clear insights into the challenges of environmental sustainability and social and economic development It is unique in offering a synthesis of theoretical ideas on sustainability and in its coverage of the extensive literature on environment and development around the world The book has proved its value to generations of students as an authoritative thought provoking and readable guide to the field of sustainable development Environment and Industry in Developing Countries Ralph Andrew Luken, Frank Van Rompaey, 2007-01-01 This impressive study compares the adoption of environmentally sound technology in industrial sectors in eight developing countries In combining a variety of quantitative and qualitative methodologies on rich empirical data the authors open the technological change black box and are able to formulate clear conclusions on the drivers and barriers for technological change A major contribution to better understanding and governing environmentally sound technological change Arthur P J Mol Wageningen University The Netherlands All theory is gray but the golden tree of life springs ever green says Goethe This book is very green that is empirical about a green topic the adoption of environmentally sound technologies in developing countries using triangulation for assessing the factors behind such choices A very nice study on an important topic Ren Kemp UNU MERIT Maastricht The Netherlands Industries located in developing countries have made major improvements in environmental performance since the Rio Earth Summit of 1992 More specifically their record in reducing energy use and water pollutant intensities has been better than developed countries This significant new book investigates what motivates industries in developing countries to adopt environmentally sound technology EST a subject about which very little is actually known The authors present the findings of a United Nations study of the factors that determined EST adoption by 105 manufacturing plants in four different sectors within eight developing countries They explore both factors internal to the plants as well as external factors including governments markets and civil society Environment and Industry in Developing Countries will be of great interest to development assistance agencies supporting programmes for industrial environmental management in developing countries and also to graduate school programmes in economic development technology management as well as in international business Environment and Aquaculture in Developing Countries Roger S. V. Pullin, H. Rosenthal, John L. Maclean, 1993 Green Development William Mark Adams, 2001 This revised and updated new edition retains the clear and powerful argument which characterized the original It gives a valuable analysis of the theory and practice of sustainable development and suggests that at the start of the new millennium we should think radically about the challenge of sustainability Fully revised this latest edition includes further reading chapter outlines chapter summaries and new discussion topics and explores the roots of sustainable development thinking and its evolution in the last three decades of the twentieth century the dominant ideas within mainstream sustainable development the nature and diversity of alternative ideas about sustainability the problems of environmental degradation and the environmental impacts of development strategies for building sustainability in development from above and below Offering a synthesis of theoretical ideas on sustainability based on the industrialized economies of the North and the practical applied ideas in the South which tend to ignore First World theory this important text gives a clear discussion of theory and extensive practical insights drawn from Africa Latin America and Asia The Developing World E. Ike Udogu, 2012-10-04 Nation states in the developing world have seen a renaissance in their political social and economic structures Newly industrializing countries like Brazil Mexico China and India are poised to claim the 21st century as their own But economic conditions in many nations of the developing world still leave much to be desired especially with respect to its marginalized citizens whose incomes are often less than two dollars a day Scholars continue to ask what academics political actors economic entrepreneurs and others committed to tackling the bane of underdevelopment in the developing world can do to improve the plight of these nations destitute populations The Developing World Critical Issues in Politics and Society explores the challenges presented by political cultural religious social and economic practices to the future development of these nation states The essays gathered here written by seasoned scholars with deep social political and academic roots in Africa Asia and Latin America explain how improvements in politics social arrangements and information communication technologies contribute to the effectiveness of emerging nations internal politics and their influence on world affairs Individual essays consider such key issues as how to develop more efficiently the processes of liberal democratization how to apply more uniformly the law enforcement policies of governments to all citizens in a society how the marginalization of women hampers national development how the political development of Mexico as a linguistic regional power has influenced the rest of Central America how development and protection of the environment are linked how an effective application of information communication technologies can enhance the quality of education and boost growth at all levels in a polity This work will interest scholars focused on the developing world social and public policy international politics and social and political theory

Ecological Policy and Politics in Developing Countries Uday Desai, 1998-04-16 Examines in depth the ecological problems policies and politics of ten major developing countries The Environmental Divide R. C. Das, 1998 Globalization and Adherence to Standard of Environment Impact Assessment in Developing Countries especially in India Dr. Tabassum Sheikh, 2017-12-20 Globalisation has created opportunities for development options Environment Impact Assessment ascertains sites for location development project to design new and more effective pollution abatement devices and to keep pollution below the maximum permissible limit and in realizing ethical norms to keep the environment pure and clean The aim of this book is to find out whether the Indian Government has been able to prepare a checklist and act as a watchdog on International Projects in India as to whether International standards are being maintained here

Sustainable Real Estate in the Developing World Raymond Talinbe Abdulai, Kwasi Gyau Baffour Awuah, 2021-03-29 Sustainable Real Estate in the Developing World offers a perfect and ideal synthesis of works that examine sustainability within various facets of real estate and urban development in the developing world A must read for academics researchers policy makers and students in all the built environment disciplines

Political Economy of Development and Environment in Modern India Velayutham Saravanan, 2023-04-24 This book captures the complexities of both development and environment from the political economy point of view to offer a broad economic and environmental history of post independence India It analyses the various components of constitutional provisions policies programmes and ecology protection measures during the post independence period that is 1947 2020 The author also investigates India's land and forest policies of the 21st century Fair Compensation of Land Acquisition Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act 2013 and the Scheduled Tribes and Other Traditional Forest Dwellers Recognition of Forest Rights Act 2006 which pose a great threat to ecology and the environment The volume argues how on one hand the development agenda has undermined the environmental components for the first three decades of independence and on the other hand how the popular vote bank politics further has aggravated the issues related to environment in India This book is an essential interdisciplinary resource for scholars and researchers of history economic history environmental studies environmental history Indian history and development studies

Global Development and the Environment Joel Darmstadter, 1992 Twenty years after the landmark Stockholm Conference on the Human Environment in 1972 the United Nations has convened a Conference on Environment and Development UNCED in Rio de Janeiro in June 1992 The 1989 UN resolution calling for the conference singles out among other global problems issues of biodiversity water and other natural resources atmospheric integrity and human health as ones whose management requires strengthened international cooperation and attention Whatever explicit and effective commitments to control greenhouse gases that threaten global warming for example are negotiated at UNCED profound problems relating to the linked pursuit of environmental natural resource and economic objectives are certain to survive the two week meeting of government leaders technical experts and representatives of environmental constituencies To be sure participants may well assert that the goals of environmental protection natural resource adequacy and economic growth are compatible But a probing of the question of sustainability of development inspires less confidence that potential problems and conflicts in the pursuit of these goals are fully appreciated in the international community much less that the consensus needed to easily achieve the goals will be forthcoming In Global Development and the Environment Perspectives on Sustainability researchers at Resources for the Future examine some of the enduring issues whether or not officially under consideration at the conference or raised there informally that cannot be ignored in any attempt to pursue aspirations concerning the environment and development The lasting value of UNCED may depend on the extent to which it diverse participants couple political rhetoric with willingness to confront these difficult issues once this earth summit fades into history

Globalization, Political Institutions and the Environment in Developing Countries Gabriele Spilker, 2013 Though industrialized countries are usually the ones indicted when environmental pollution is discussed over the few last years the rate of emissions in developing countries has increased by a startling amount The fallout from this increase is evidenced by the struggle of cities like Beijing to improve their air quality Yet there also exist developing countries such as Thailand that have managed to limit their emissions to more tolerable levels raising the question why are some developing countries more willing or able to take care of their environment than others In this volume Gabriele Spilker proposes two factors for the differences in developing countries environmental performance integration into the international system and domestic political institutions Focusing on developing countries generally but also closely examining important global powers such as China and India Spilker employs a rigorous quantitative analysis to demonstrate the importance of considering various aspects of the international system in order to draw more comprehensive conclusions about how globalization affects environmental performance She asserts that democratic political institutions can shield developing countries from the negative consequences of either trade or foreign direct investment But at the same time developing countries by avoiding demanding commitments are more likely to use environmental treaties as a cover than as a real plan of action Adding a new dimension to the existing body of research on environmental quality and commitment Spilker convincingly demonstrates how international and domestic political factors interact to shape developing countries ability and willingness to care for their natural environment

Climate Change and Developing Countries Nijavalli H. Ravindranath, Jayant A. Sathaye, 2005-12-16 Among global environmental issues climate change has received the largest attention of national and global policy makers researchers industry multilateral banks and NGOs Climate change is one of the most important global environmental problems with unique characteristics It is global long term up to several centuries and involves complex interactions between climatic environmental economic political institutional and technological pressures It is of great significance to developing countries as all the available knowledge suggests that they and particularly their poorer inhabitants are highly vulnerable to climate impacts The projected warming of 1.4 to 5.8 °C by 2100 and the related changes in rainfall pattern rise in sea level and increased frequency of extreme events such as drought hurricanes and storms are likely to threaten food security increase fresh water scarcity lead to decline in biodiversity increase occurrence of vector borne diseases cause flooding of coastal settlements etc Recognizing the potential threat of severe disruptions the United Nations Conference on Environment and Development was organized in 1992 in Rio de Janeiro Brazil to begin to address ways to reduce these impacts which led to the formulation of the UN Framework Convention on Climate Change This Convention and the subsequent Kyoto Protocol recognize the common but differentiated responsibility of developing and industrialized countries in addressing climate change Developing countries thus have a unique role to play in formulating a sound reasoned and well informed response to the threat of climate change

Environmental Economics in Developing Countries Achiransu Acharyya, 2022-11-02 The COVID 19 pandemic has laid bare the vulnerabilities of socio economic systems globally and exposed the risks that natural capital degradation imposes on human health economy and society This book studies the environmental challenges faced by developing economies in a post COVID 19 world Exploring diverse case studies from South Asia and Sub Saharan Africa the volume discusses the impact that economic development and recently COVID 19 has had on the environment ecology and economy of these regions It analyses nature conservation policies aimed at minimizing ecological damage arising from economic development and discusses the policy objectives of sustainable development It also highlights the significant role that environmental economics networks have played in capacity building framing of policies using ecological economics tools and developing a local leadership trained in addressing local sustainability issues An important contribution to the study of environmental economics of the Global South the book will be of interest to students and researchers of economics environment development studies development economics environmental policies and South Asia studies It will also be useful for policymakers and NGOs working in this field

Fractal Modernisation Model of Industrial Areas' Environment in Developing Countries Dr. Mihyar M. Awad,2015-12-18 The Book is emerging a deeper sense of understanding the morphology of industrial districts in terms of their form process scale statistics and dynamics to enable us to map out our approach for developing irregular dynamical industrial districts Environmental condition of industrial district in developing countries is in perpetual change which leads to the failure of the classical modernisation method in achieving their goals Therefore the need for dynamical and flexible system is very urgent in such conditions The fractal modernisation method of industrial Areas which created by this research is characterised by flexible urban modernisation system hierarchical metamorphosis information network and dynamical promotional system As well as featured by perpetual repetition of planning process on time by self organisational structures Those are features give this method its durability and capability to meet the actual and futuristic needs of randomly dynamical industrial districts of developing countries Environmental Impacts of Tourism in Developing Nations Sharma, Ravi,Rao, Prakash,2018-09-07 In the face of rapid industrialisation in the last few decades the tourism economy has blossomed into a major industry with positive impacts such as economic growth infrastructure development employment and income generation However tourism brings negative environmental effects such as degradation of landscapes and habitats increased vulnerability of avifauna and wildlife and pollution leading to the decline of species Environmental Impacts of Tourism in Developing Nations is a pivotal reference source that explores some of the critical challenges faced in the tourism economy particularly with regard to the impacts on the environment in developing nations It also explores the impact tourism plays in the biophysical environment such as the issue of climate change While highlighting topics such as environmental justice ecosystems and ecotourism this book is ideally designed for academicians policymakers environmentalists tourism professionals and graduate level students seeking current research on the environmental and economic impacts of tourism In The U.S. Interest Janet Welsh Brown,2021-11-28 In the U S interest explores the implications this growing interdependence holds for US foreign policy in the developing world It links US jobs trade and geopolitical interests to the environmental economic and political health of key developing nations Case studies of Mexico Egypt Kenya and the Philippines analyze Third World resource environmental and population problems revealing the need for US policymakers to recognize US national interest in international environmental cooperation Environmental Justice in Developing Countries Rhuks Ako,2013-08-15 The evolving environmental justice paradigm is conceptualized differently based on political economic and historical factors In developed countries emphasis is placed on the role of individuals in environmental decision making and the protection of their access to the prerequisite environmental information and capacity to challenge environmental decisions is the main focus However in developing countries access to land and natural resources are considered integral elements of environmental justice paradigm This book focuses on the conceptualization recognition and protection of environmental justice in developing countries It explores the situation by engaging an analytical discourse of relevant legal provisions in four case study countries including Nigeria South Africa India and Papua New Guinea The comparative analysis of environmental justice in these countries present a framework within which to appreciate the conceptualization of the environmental justice paradigm
