

behaviour will find clear explanations of concepts, terminology, and how an understanding of animal behaviour can improve their conservation strategies. In turn, this book can also provide researchers and students of animal behaviour, ecology, and statistics with information on how their studies can be more explicitly incorporated into conservation plans.

Environmental Ethics, Ecological Theology, and Natural Selection

BY LISA H. SIDERIS

viii + 311 pp., 23 × 15 × 1.8 cm, ISBN 0 231 12661 1 paperback, US$ 24.50/GB£ 18.00, New York, USA: Columbia University Press, 2003

As a relative upstart sub-discipline within the larger and ancient field of philosophy, environmental ethics, both sacred and secular, has explicitly attempted to appeal to science as a source of information about the human and non-human world. For better or for worse, this exciting fusion of science and ethics has been the cornerstone of all reasonable approaches to environmental ethics.

In this monograph, Lisa Sideris assesses the relative successes and failures of some of the most recognized of these approaches. While she is particularly interested in a series of ecotheologians, along the way she appraises some of the more recognized animal welfare ethics as well as more holistic 'land ethic' approaches. Pointing out that 'ecotheologians... claim that they have grounded their ethics in religious teaching as well as scientific knowledge about the natural world (p. 3)', Sideris undertakes an extremely thorough and critical analysis of this claim. She dismisses nearly all such approaches (apart from those of James Gustafson and Holmes Rolston, III) as inadequately fulfilling their mission. Even though all of the ecotheologians that she examines profess to have 'taken natural science seriously in constructing theological ethics that pertain to nature (p. 4)', in the end Sideris persuasively argues that they fall far short when it comes to considering the current scientific theories of evolution and ecology. In fact, at the end of the book Sideris even goes so far as to suggest that 'from the perspective of science, ecotheologians, as well as some secular ethicists [referring to the animal welfare ethics of Peter Singer and Tom Regan], borrow selectively from scientific data in order to bolster particular ethical claims (p. 264)'.

The book is quite accurate. The introduction, the set-up of environmental ethics, the review and critique of various ethical positions, and the summary of the main tenets of the scientific theories she addresses are all first-rate. Moreover, in addition to being critical of various types of approaches it is also constructive. The end of the book contains the seeds of an important and potentially adequate environmental ethic. This is an ethic rooted in the most current readings of scientific theory, a thorough understanding of current environmental problems, and the ethical tradition of the seminal environmental ethic of Aldo Leopold, North America's father of conservation.

Readers of this journal should pay special attention to a book such as this. It is as clear a demonstration as exists of the import of scientific theorizing and the fusion between the culture of the sciences and that of the humanities. In general, if environmental ethics is attempting to help humans decide how they ought to treat the non-human world, then a description of what sort of thing the non-human world is becomes of paramount importance. As Sideris so cogently demonstrates, it is not enough to simply describe the world in scientific terms, just as it is not enough to simply suggest that humans ought to treat the non-human well, or lovingly, or with respect, or whatever. Unless humans can come to some sort of an understanding about the nature of the non-human world, prescriptions for action premised on love and respect are vacuous and unhelpful. Sideris demonstrates this confusion exceptionally well.

This attractive book is put together splendidly. While it is most certainly a piece of rigorous analytic philosophy, it is written in such a manner as to be accessible to those not thoroughly versed in technical philosophy and environmental ethics. It makes a good introduction to environmental ethics, the relationships between science and philosophy, and the current problems with ecological approaches to environmental ethics. Moreover, it is also a wonderful book for a group read and discussion, or for a graduate or upper-level undergraduate course in a variety of disciplines.

The Trade in Wildlife. Regulation for Conservation

EDITED BY SARA OLDFIELD

xiii + 210 pp., 23.5 × 15 × 1.5 cm, ISBN 1 85383 954 X paperback, US$ 29.95/GB£ 17.95, Stirling, VA, USA/London, UK: Earthscan Publications Limited, 2003

Conservationists have laboured under many assumptions about wildlife trade, namely that (1) it is detrimental to conservation; (2) it stimulates illegal trade; (3) regulation and enforcement are appropriate responses; and (4) that the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species (CITES) is the best mechanism to reverse these effects. The Trade in Wildlife presents the results of a seminar conducted at Cambridge University in 2001 that effectively challenged and, in some cases, refuted these contentions.

The volume, comprising an introduction, 18 presented papers and a summary, provides a detailed discussion by a wide variety of knowledgeable commentators who present some unusual and occasionally startling views on the topic. The volume is organized into

Environmental Ethics Ecological Theology And Natural Selection:

Environmental Ethics, Ecological Theology, and Natural Selection Lisa Sideris, 2003-07-16 In the last few decades religious and secular thinkers have tackled the world's escalating environmental crisis by attempting to develop an ecological ethic that is both scientifically accurate and free of human centered preconceptions This groundbreaking study shows that many of these environmental ethicists continue to model their positions on romantic pre Darwinian concepts that disregard the predatory and cruelly competitive realities of the natural world Examining the work of such influential thinkers as James Gustafson Sallie McFague Rosemary Radford Ruether John Cobb Peter Singer and Holmes Rolston Sideris proposes a more realistic ethic that combines evolutionary theory with theological insight advocates a minimally interventionist stance toward nature and values the processes over the products of the natural world

Environmental Ethics, Ecological Theology, and Natural Selection Lisa H. Sideris, 2003 Lisa Sideris proposes a new way of thinking about the natural world an environmental ethic that incorporates the ideas of natural selection and values the processes rather than the products of nature Such an approach encourages us to take a minimally interventionist approach to nature Only when the competitive realities of evolution are faced squarely Sideris argues can we generate practical environmental principles to deal with such issues as species extinction and the relationship between suffering and sentience

Christianity and Ecological Theology E. M. Conradie, 2006-10-01 There has been a proliferation of publications in the field of Christian ecological theology over the last three decades or so These include a number of recent edited volumes each covering a range of topics and consolidating many of the emerging insights in ecological theology The call for Christian churches to respond to the environmental crisis has been reiterated numerous times in this vast corpus of literature also in South Africa

This volume brings into dialogue the ancient wisdom of Augustine of Hippo a bishop of the early Christian Church of the fourth and fifth centuries with contemporary theologians and ethicists on the topic of the environment and humanity s place in and responsibility to it The contributors vary widely in their estimation of how sustained and useful such a dialogue might be from outright dismissal of the church father to extended speculation with him and in his spirit Their conclusions impact our views of God and both human and non human creation Such engagement should influence any future discussion of how Christianity and environmentalism can interact or influence one another Creation and Salvation: A companion on recent theological movements E. Theology and Fundamental Debates in Environmental Ethics Steven C. van den Heuvel, 2017-05-04 There is widespread understanding of the close connection between religion and the ecological crisis and that in order to amend this crisis theological resources are needed This monograph seeks to contribute to this endeavor by engaging the theology of Dietrich Bonhoeffer His theology is particularly suitable in this context due to its open ended nature and to the prophetic and radical nature of the questions he was prepared to ask that is why there are many other attempts to contextualize Bonhoeffer's theology in areas that he himself has not directly written about In this monograph Steven van den Heuvel first of all addresses the question of how to translate Bonhoeffer's theology in a methodologically sound way He settles on a modified form of the general method of correlation Then secondly van den Heuvel sets out to describe five major concepts in Bonhoeffer's work bringing these into critical interplay with discussions in environmental ethics and eco theology In making the correlations he thoroughly describes each concept situating it in the historic and intellectual background of Bonhoeffer's time He then transposes these concepts to contemporary environmental ethics describing what contribution Bonhoeffer's theology can make

Theological Anthropology in the Anthropocene Jan-Olav Henriksen, 2022-12-14 The Anthropocene presents theology and especially theological anthropology with unprecedented challenges There are no immediately available resources in the theological tradition that reflect directly on such experiences Accordingly the situation calls for contextually based theological reflection of what it means to be human under such circumstances This book discusses the main elements in theological anthropology in light of the fundamental points a that theological anthropology needs to be articulated with reference to and informed by the concrete historical circumstances in which humanity presently finds itself and b that the notion of the Anthropocene can be used as a heuristic tool to describe important traits and conditions that call for a response by humanity and which entail the need for a renewal of what a Christian self understanding means Jan Olav Henriksen explores what such a response entails from the point of view of contemporary theological anthropology and discusses selected topics that can contribute to a contextually based position
