Entrepreneurial Venture:

The Life Cycle of Entrepreneurial Ventures Simon Parker, 2006-12-26 about nascent entrepreneurship distilled from recent research Wagner first summarises evidence about the incidence of nascent entrepreneurship before surveying the start up activities of nascent entrepreneurs He then goes on to provide a birds eye view of the characteristics of nascent entrepreneurs the factors associated with becoming a nascent entrepreneur and the outcomes of nascent entrepreneurs in terms of whether they start quit or continue preparing for eventual business entry Wagner's chapter provides a wealth of information about nascent entrepreneurship summarising key findings from a large and growing and diverse literature which looks set to continue growing rapidly in the years ahead In Chapter 3 Shaker Zahra reviews the literature on new venture strategy and its implications for organizational survival financial performance and growth Zahra discusses competitive cooperative and political strategies and highlights the importance of synchronizing these strategies A particular strength of this chapter is its ability to uncover similarities and unifying themes in apparently divergent views In this way the chapter succeeds in resolving some apparent contradictions by putting the different perspectives into a complementary context and identifying areas where convergence appears to be within reach Zahra goes on to highlight the contributions of the different strategic approaches as well as their shortcomings He concludes by identifying several implications for future research

The Role of Fear for Entrepreneurial Venture Creation Philipp K. Berger, 2015-03-10 Based on theory and an empirical survey Philipp K Berger measures the amount of fear for different groups of entrepreneurs He draws parallels to Prospect Theory revealing the components of fear and shows that entrepreneurial fear is a rather rational subconscious evaluation of the situation Furthermore he identifies the root causes of this fear the fear of failure and the underlying reasons why potential entrepreneurs think they might fail A comparison to actual company failure shows that potential entrepreneurs both over rate certain potential pitfalls and under estimate other blind spots The attributes of the individuals also have an influence on their fear clustering them into rather fearful and rather fearless entrepreneurs Based on the generated insights the book concludes with concrete recommendations to improve the entrepreneurial activity in a country

Social Capital and Strategy Effectiveness: An Empirical Study of Entrepreneurial Ventures in a Transition Economy I. Manev, T. Manolova, B. Gyoshev, J. Harkins, 2013-05-30 Although new ventures competitive positioning and their founders social networks are both recognized as important in the context of transition economies not much is known about their multiplicative effect on performance We build on the strategic management literature and social network theory to develop theoretical predictions about the role of competitive strategies and social capital for entrepreneurial performance These are tested with survey data from Bulgaria We find that both the venture s competitive strategic positioning and the founder s networking positively influence performance The hypothesized moderating effect of networking for the relationship between differentiation strategy and performance received only tentative support Contrary to expectations we find a negative moderating effect of networking for the relationship of cost leadership with performance These results suggest that the entrepreneur s network plays a role in shaping how strategies influence performance by possibly upholding differentiation and deemphasizing cost leadership strategy Implications for managerial practice and public policy are discussed
