

THE EFFECTS OF THE COVID-19 PANDEMIC ON THE FINANCIAL PERFORMANCE OF THE BANKING SECTOR IN THE UNITED STATES

Author: [Name]

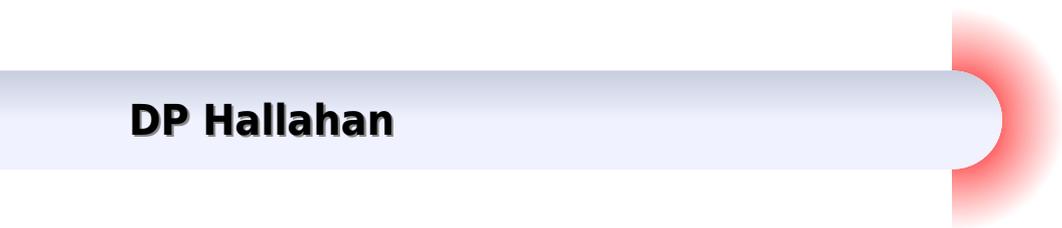

Abstract: This study examines the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on the financial performance of the banking sector in the United States. The research focuses on the period from March 2020 to March 2021, during which the pandemic caused significant economic disruption. The findings indicate that the banking sector experienced a sharp decline in profitability and a significant increase in non-performing assets (NPA) during this period. The study also identifies several factors that contributed to these changes, including the impact of the Federal Reserve's monetary policy and the widespread economic uncertainty. The results suggest that the banking sector is likely to continue to face challenges in the short term, but may begin to recover as the economy stabilizes.
