Receive Our Memories José Orozco, 2017 Receive our Memories is a rare study of an epistolary relationship for individuals whose migration from Mexico has been looked at en masse but not from such a personal and human angle The heart of the book consists of eighty translated and edited versions of letters from Luz Moreno a poor uneducated Mexican sharecropper to his daughter a recent migrant to California in the 1950s These are contextualized and framed in light of immigration and labor history the histories of Mexico and the United States in this period and family history Although Moreno's letters include many of the affective concerns and quotidian subject matter that are the heart and soul of most immigrant correspondence they also reveal his deep attachment to a wider world that he has never seen They include extensive discussions on the political events of his day the Cold War the Korean War the atomic bomb the conflict between Truman and MacArthur ruminations on culture and religion the role of Catholicism in the modern world the dangers of Protestantism to Mexican immigrants to the United States and extensive deliberations on the philosophical questions that would naturally preoccupy the mind of an elderly and sick man Is life worth living What is death Will I be rewarded or punished in death What does it mean to live a moral life The thoughtfulness of Moreno's meditations and quantity of letters he penned provide historians with the rare privilege of reading a part of the Mexican national narrative that as Mexican author Elena Poniatowska notes is usually written daily and daily erased

Anderson,Zélia M. Bora,2016-10-04 Worldwide environmental crisis has become increasingly visible over the last few decades as the full scope of anthropogenic climate change manifests itself and large scale natural resource extraction has expanded into formerly remote areas that seemed beyond the reach of industrialization Scientists and popular culture alike have turned to the term Anthropocene to capture the global scale of environmental and even geological transformations that humans have carried out over the last two centuries The chapters in Ecological Crisis and Cultural Representation in Latin America examine the dynamics and interplay between local cultures and the expansion of global capitalism in Latin America emphasizing the role of art in bearing witness to and generating awareness of environmental and social crises but also its possibilities for formulating solutions They take particular care to draw out the ways in which local environmental crises in Latin American nations are witnessed and imagined as part of a global system focusing on the problems of time scale and complexity as key terms in conceiving the dimensions of crisis At the same time they question the notion of the Anthropocene as a species wide human historical project making visible the coloniality of natural resource extraction in Latin America and its dire effects for local people cultures and environments Taking an ecocritical approach to Latin American cultural production including literature film performance and digital artwork the chapters in this volume develop a notion of ecological crisis that captures not only its documentary sense in the representation of environmental destruction the degradation of the oikos but also the crisis in the modern worldview logos that the acknowledgment of crisis provokes In this sense crisis is also the promise of a turning point of the possibilities for change Latin American representations of ecological crisis thus create the conditions for projects that decolonize environments developing new sustainable ways of conceiving of and relating to our world or returning to old ones Kinship Ideology and Practice in Latin America Raymond Thomas
