

A conceptual illustration showing a group of diverse people of various ages and ethnicities pushing a large, realistic globe of the Earth up a steep, grassy hill. The globe is tilted, showing the Americas and parts of Europe and Africa. The people are silhouetted against a bright, hazy sky with soft, pinkish-orange clouds, suggesting a sunset or sunrise. In the background, a line of evergreen trees is visible on the horizon. The overall mood is one of collective effort and struggle.

Within international law there is no unified concept of peace This book addresses this gap by considering the liberal conception of peace within Western philosophy alongside the principle of peaceful coexistence supported in the East By tracing the evolution of the international law of peace through its historical and philosophical origins this book investigates whether there is a right to peace The book explores how existing international law and institutions contribute to the establishment of peace or how they fail to do so It sets out how international law promotes the negative dimension of peace the absence of violence as well as its positive dimension the presence of underlying conditions for peace It also investigates whether international actors and institutions have particular obligations in relation to the establishment and maintenance of peace Discussions include the relationships between the different regimes of human rights trade development the environment and regulation of arms trade with peace the role of women refugees and other groups seeking equal treatment the role of peacekeepers transitional justice mechanisms international courts fact finding missions and national constitutional frameworks in upholding peace in practice and how civil society participates in the promotion and safeguarding of peace The book's comprehensive treatment of the concept of peace in international law makes it an ideal reference work for those working in the field as well as for students Minorities and the Making of Postcolonial States in International Law

Mohammad Shahabuddin, 2021-06-10 The ideological function of the postcolonial national liberal and developmental state inflicts various forms of marginalisation on minorities but simultaneously justifies oppression in the name of national unity equality and non discrimination and economic development International law plays a central role in the ideological making of the postcolonial state in relation to postcolonial boundaries the liberal individualist architecture of rights and the neoliberal economic vision of development In this process international law subjugates minority interests and in turn aggravates the problem of ethno nationalism Analysing the geneses of ethno nationalism in postcolonial states Mohammad Shahabuddin substantiates these arguments with in depth case studies on the Rohingya and the hill people of the Chittagong Hill Tracts against the historical backdrop of the minority question in Indian nationalist and constitutional discourse Shahabuddin also proposes alternative international law frameworks for minorities International Law and Transition to Peace in Colombia César Rojas-Orozco, 2021-07-05 In International Law and Transition to Peace in Colombia César Rojas Orozco analyses the role of international law in transition from armed conflict to peace by using the analytical framework of jus post bellum and Colombia as a case study While contemporary attention to jus post bellum has focused on its theoretical development and regarding international warfare this book is the first work to comprehensively assess the concept in practice and in the context of a non international armed conflict Discussing the creative formulas adopted in Colombia to conciliate international legal requirements and the practical needs of peace the book offers concrete elements to understand the concept of jus post bellum as a framework to guide other transitions around the world

context of development activities
