Economic Policies at Cross Purposes Anne O. Krueger, 1995

Economic Policies at Cross Purposes Anne

Krueger, 2010-12-01 As developing countries become increasingly important in the international economy there is an urgent need to reassess U S policies This book examines the various U S international economic policies that affect developing countries and shows that American policies regarding trade aid debt and the multilateral institutions are undertaken largely without coordination and often conflict with each other Tracing the evolution of foreign aid Anna Krueger explains that just after World War II American economic policies toward developing countries consisted almost entirely of foreign aid This approach was highly successful at first but then the ability of USAID officials to carry out their mandate eroded over time because of political constraints and conflicting objectives of the aid program She assesses the U S role toward the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank and argues that the United States could have been far more effective in these institutions Krueger then addresses trade policy Although U S leadership to obtain an open multilateral trading system was regarded as a policy oriented toward developed countries the resulting growth of the world trading system permitted rapid growth of developing countries As developing countries have adopted realistic economic policies that are conducive to economic efficiency and growth they have become more important trading partners for the United States and other developed countries Looking at the evolution of U S policy toward the heavy debt burdens of developing countries Krueger explains that U S policy has generally been one step behind the realities of the era Illustrating how trade aid and debt policies interact Krueger examines two cases The Caribbean Basin Initiative and Korea She shows that in Korea for example highly successful aid policies of the 1950s helped lay the foundations for rapid economic growth while the success of Korea s exports then led to acrimonious relations over its trade and exchange rate policies Krueger concludes by calling for a firmer U S commitment to an open multilateral trading system and points to the interdependence between foreign and trade policies

Developing Nations and the Politics of Global Integration Stephan Haggard, 1995-04-01 Developing countries are becoming important players in the world economy Although they were slow to liberalize trade they are now joining the more economically advanced nations in implementing trade reforms and in taking steps to deepen global integration The lowering of trade barriers and the growth of foreign investment have benefited the developing countries but have also created vulnerabilities including risks of dependence and political interference Is deeper integration in the best interest of developing countries In this book part of the Integrating National Economies series Stephen Haggard examines the position of the developing countries in the international trade regime Focusing on the nations of East and Southeast Asia and Latin American Haggard explores the cause of economic liberalization policies in the developing nations He argues that various international constraints such as economic shocks and political pressures from the economically advanced nations pushed developing countries to open up to international competition and to pursue economic relations with advanced industrial states Haggard addresses such central questions as Will developing countries benefit from the deep integration agenda Will they instead join closed regional blocs that fragment the international economy Will the developing nations orient themselves toward the multilateral institutions particularly the World Trade Organization or will they gravitate toward regional arrangements Haggard argues that the advanced developing countries have become strong supporters of the multilateral system and that the extent of regionalism has been over stated He contends that a more serious threat is the lure of bilateralism and the effort of the advanced industrial states to impose standards on developing countries that are inappropriate or politically counterproductive A volume of Brookings Integrating National Economies Series

Global communications : opportunities for trade and aid. ,1995 Global Communications Opportunities for Trade and Aid examines the question of how telecommunication related aid policies might be designed to support both United States trade and foreign aid goals Communication and information technologies are particularly well suited in this regard These technologies are of critical importance in today s knowledge based global economy Not only do they provide the networked infrastructure on which global businesses will increasingly take place they also constitute one of the fastest growing sectors of world trade and investment There is already mounting evidence and a growing appreciation of the positive role that information and communication technologies can play in supporting economic development By targeting poor and underserved areas telecommunication based aid programs have the potential to enhance U S trade opportunities in developing countries and promote competition and telecommunications regulatory reform while at the same time providing for the communities and people most in need To lay the groundwork for developing an effective telecommunications related aid strategy the report examines the likely scenarios for the deployment of communication and information technologies in support of global trade identifies the policy issues market failures and regulatory barriers that need to be overcome and identifies and analyzes telecommunications related foreign aid strategies that the federal government might pursue to address these problems

Privatization and Deregulation Surjit S. Sidhu,Mohinder S. Mudahar,1999-05-31 The contributions in this publication are an outcome of growing concerns around the world about the prevailing inefficiencies in agriculture and agribusiness and the need to improve productivity profitability and financial sustainability of agriculture and agribusiness by privatizing state owned enterprises and eliminating unnecessary government regulations It is in this context that an international symposium was organized on April 19 30 1993 to address these policy concerns and thereby to improve the long term prospects for productive and financially sustainable agriculture and agribusiness development The policy issues addressed herein were identified in a series of discussions at IFDC and with the authors The main objectives were to focus on analytical policy issues that accelerate the process of privatization and market deregulation of publicly owned and operated enterprises and to provide necessary operational guidelines for policy reforms This publication is structured around four main topics 1 the role of agribusiness in economic development 2 possible approaches and guidelines for privatization and deregulation of agribusiness 3 the necessary enabling policy environment for privatization and deregulation and 4 selected case studies The views expressed in this publication belong solely to the respective authors and should not be attributed to IFDC World Bank or other organizations represented Readers should keep in mind that when authors refer to current or present situations they generally mean 1992-93 unless otherwise specified

Omoruyi, 2017-09-20 This title was first published in 2001 This thorough and comprehensive examination of the nature and pattern of post Cold War aid to sub-Saharan Africa provides incisive comparative case studies of the motivations behind the foreign aid policies of key members of the Development Association Committee DAC In one of the most rigorous contemporary efforts to evaluate the adequacy of the dominant theories of international relations on an important subject like foreign aid Dr Omoruyi eschews easy answers to the problem of Africa's marginalization in the international system He provides thoughtful innovative suggestions for promoting a new development partnership between industrialized countries and Africa using a sophisticated quantitative method of inquiry making this text a valuable contribution to social science literature on research methods

The Department of State Bulletin, 2010

Privatisation and Development Claude V. Chang, 2017-11-28 The book interrogates privatisation in terms of its effectiveness vis-à-vis its stated goals and more fundamentally in terms of its success in delivering economic development It investigates why privatisation was successful in the UK and other OECD countries and why it has not met with equal success in developing countries In this regard it further examines the policy prescriptions of the IMF and World Bank in relation to the conceptualised benefits and theoretical assumptions underlying these supposed benefits The author assesses the extent to which culture and customs indeed the mode of production stand in determinate relationship to the goals techniques and outcome of the process Furthermore Chang examines the degree to which socioeconomic and moral consequences of privatisation have been ignored in pursuit of the ideological imperative implicit in the Washington Consensus Hence the book contributes to the reflective thought that must necessarily be part of theory validation and provides the basis for a balanced and empirically valid theory of privatisation

Policy Coherence in Development Co-operation Jacques Forster, Olav Schram

Stokke,2013-09-13 In the 1990s a shared conviction emerged among aid donors that their policies should be more coherent The drive towards increased policy coherence came as a response to a state of policy incoherence The shifting grounds of policy coherence in development co operation are outlined in this volume US Economic History Since 1945 Michael French,1997 Since 1945 the US economy has evolved from an expanding consumer society in which affluence was more widely distributed than ever before Mike French s volume examines the principal economic developments and social changes in the US since 1945 including those in business regional dynamics protest movements and population distribution Social movements based on the civil rights demands of African Americans ethnic minorities and women are also examined The elements of continuity to pre 1945 trends and the points of departure notably in the post 1970 period are discussed to provide a more complete examination than previously available U.S. Trade Agenda United States. Committee on Ways and Means,2007 Mastering Space John Agnew,Stuart Crobridge,2002-09-26 For over two hundred years the domination of some countries by others has been intrinsic to international relations with national economic and political strength viewed as essential to a nation s survival and global position Mastering Space identifies the essential features of this state centredness and suggests an optimistic alternative more in keeping with the contemporary post Cold War climate Drawing on recent geopolitical thinking the authors claim that the dynamism of the international political economy has been obscured through excessive attention on the state as an unchanging actor Dealing with such topical issues as Japan s rise to economic dominance and America s perceived decline as well as the global impact of continued geographical change the book discusses the role of geographical organization in the global political economy and the impact of increasing economic globalisation and political fragmentation in future international relations The authors identify the present time as crucial to the global political economy and explore the possibilities of moving the world from mastering space to real reciprocity between peoples and places John Agnew is a Professor of Geography at the Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs Syracuse University Stuart Corbridge is a lecturer in Geography at the University of Cambridge and a Fellow of Sidney Sussex College Global Communications ,1995 The Role of Foreign Aid in Development Eric Jackson Labs,1997 The Influence of Small States on Superpowers Richard L.
