Frozen in Time: An Early Carte de Visite Album from New Bedford, Massachusetts Susan Snow Lukesh, 2016-02-15 Susan Snow Lukesh takes a mid nineteenth century photo album from New Bedford Massachusetts created against a backdrop of the Civil War and moves the people seemingly frozen in time backwards and forwards The details of daily living of the marrying working and dying of the individuals in the album demonstrate the personal side of the development of this famous whaling capital through its transition to a strong mill economy. These details also show how the financial and intellectual capital of the city fueled development throughout the United States. At their creation, photograph albums portrayed and then continued to portray years later a community albeit selective. Importantly, these albums, especially the album presented here, served as a source for personal and collective storytelling, functioning as links to the past, offering intimations of status and social connections and family genealogy.

Works Ralph Waldo Emerson, 1887 The Dangers of Passion: The Transcendental Friendship of Ralph Waldo Emerson & Margaret Fuller Daniel Bullen, 2014-01-31

Ralph Waldo Emerson never tried to reinvent the institution of marriage, but his close friend, the writer Margaret Fuller, was freer to follow the dictates of self-reliance and choose how she would make her commitments. Born in 1810, Fuller received a boy's first-class education, and by the time she was in her twenties, she was so well-read that she had given up any hope of a normal woman's role in marriage or in society. Still unmarried at thirty, Fuller pressed Emerson for an intimacy deeper than their friendship. Emerson would not betray his marriage, but in their journals, both writers questioned the value of monogamous marriage for men and women of genius. When she realized that Emerson was not as radical as his writing suggested, Fuller went to Europe, where she married an Italian Count, Giovanni Ossoli. He was barely literate, but Fuller thought that she could still fulfill other sides of herself in other relationships. Fuller never got to live out her experiment in marriage; she and her husband died in a shipwreck on returning to America in 1850. But the questions Fuller's life had raised about how to reconcile marriage and self-reliance are still echoing now in our discomfort with marriage and with any of the alternatives.

An enlightening and emotionally charged narrative, The Dangers of Passion recounts the passionate friendship in which Emerson and Fuller first learned to trust themselves and their hearts before any other authority. Discovered the delightful freedom of shared intellectual passion. Worked together to advance a philosophy of Transcendental self-reliance. Quarreled over Emerson's inability to give Fuller deeper fulfillment. Questioned the value of marriage for men and women of genius. Consoled themselves in marriages that lacked the intellectual and philosophical passion of their friendship.

The Air-Line to Seattle Kenneth S. Lynn, 1984-10

In this controversial, wide-ranging and fearlessly candid book, Kenneth S. Lynn argues that too many of our current commentators on the American past are out of touch with historical reality. His targets range from the currently fashionable but fantastic idea that the Declaration of Independence derives from a communitarian rather than individualistic philosophy to misinterpretations of the lives of Emerson, Walter Lippmann, Hemingway, and Max Perkins. In each case, Lynn reveals the tendency of literary and intellectual historians to impose precooked formulas upon the
