CHAPTER I Gervaise had waited up for Lantier until two in the morning Then shivering from having remained in a thin loose jacket exposed to the fresh air at the window she had thrown herself across the bed drowsy feverish and her cheeks bathed in tears For a week past on leaving the Two Headed Calf where they took their meals he had sent her home with the children and never reappeared himself till late at night alleging that he had been in search of work That evening while watching for his return she thought she had seen him enter the dancing hall of the Grand Balcony the ten blazing windows of which lighted up with the glare of a conflagration the dark expanse of the exterior Boulevards and five or six paces behind him she had caught sight of little Adele a burnisher who dined at the same restaurant swinging her hands as if she had just quitted his arm so as not to pass together under the dazzling light of the globes at the door When towards five o'clock Gervaise awoke stiff and sore she broke forth into sobs Lantier had not returned For the first time he had slept away from home She remained seated on the edge of the bed under the strip of faded chintz which hung from the rod fastened to the ceiling by a piece of string And slowly with her eyes veiled by tears she glanced round the wretched lodging furnished with a walnut chest of drawers minus one drawer three rush bottomed chairs and a little greasy table on which stood a broken water jug There had been added for the children an iron bedstead which prevented any one getting to the chest of drawers and filled two thirds of the room Gervaise's and Lantier's trunk wide open in one corner displayed its emptiness and a man's old hat right at the bottom almost buried beneath some dirty shirts and socks whilst against the walls above the articles of furniture hung a shawl full of holes and a pair of trousers begrimed with mud the last rags which the dealers in second hand clothes declined to buy In the centre of the mantel piece lying between two odd zinc candle sticks was a bundle of pink pawn tickets It was the best room of the hotel the first floor room looking on to the Boulevard      L'Assommoir Emile Zola, 2017-12-03

Abandoned by her lover and left to bring up their two children alone Gervaise Macquart has to fight to earn an honest living When she accepts the marriage proposal of Monsieur Coupeau it seems as though she is on the path to a decent respectable life at last But with her husband s drinking and the unexpected appearance of a figure from her past Gervaise s plans begin to unravel tragically The Drinking Den The Dram Shop caused a sensation when it was first published with its gritty depiction of the poverty and squalor slums and drinking houses of the Parisian underclass The seventh novel in Zola s great Rougon Macquart cycle it was the work that made his reputation And in his moving portrayal of Gervaise s struggle for happiness Zola created one of the most sympathetic heroines in nineteenth century literature L' Assommoir Emile Zola,2021-05-22

The novel is principally the story of Gervaise Macquart who is featured briefly in the first novel in the series La Fortune des Rougon running away to Paris with her shiftless lover Lantier to work as a washerwoman in a hot busy laundry in one of the seedier areas of the city L Assommoir begins with Gervaise and her two young sons being abandoned by Lantier who takes off for parts unknown with another woman Though at first she swears off men altogether eventually she gives in to the advances of Coupeau a teetotal roofer and they are married The marriage sequence is one of the most famous set pieces of Zola s work the account of the wedding party s impromptu and chaotic trip to the Louvre is one of the novelist s most famous passages Through a combination of happy circumstances Gervaise is able to realise her dream and raise enough money to open her own laundry The couple s happiness appears to be complete with the birth of a daughter Anna nicknamed Nana the protagonist of Zola s later novel of the same title However later in the story we witness the downward trajectory of Gervaise s life from this happy high point Coupeau is injured in a fall from the roof of a new hospital he is working on and during his lengthy convalescence he takes first to idleness then to gluttony and eventually to drink In only a few months Coupeau becomes a vindictive wife beating alcoholic with no intention of trying to find more work Gervaise struggles to keep her home together but her excessive pride leads her to a number of embarrassing failures and before long everything is going downhill Gervaise becomes infected by her husband s newfound laziness and in an effort to impress others spends her money on lavish feasts and accumulates uncontrolled debt The home is further disrupted by the return of Lantier who is warmly welcomed by Coupeau by this point losing interest in both Gervaise and life itself and becoming seriously ill The ensuing chaos and financial strain is too much for Gervaise who loses her laundry shop and is sucked into a spiral of debt and despair Eventually she too finds solace in drink and like Coupeau slides into heavy alcoholism All this prompts Nana already suffering from the chaotic life at home and getting into trouble on a daily basis to run away from her parents home and become a casual prostitute mile douard Charles Antoine Zola was a French novelist journalist playwright the best known practitioner of the literary school of naturalism and an important contributor to the development of theatrical naturalism According to major Zola scholar and biographer Henri Mitterand Naturalism contributes something more than realism the attention brought to bear on the most lush and opulent aspects of people and the natural world The realist writer reproduces the object s image impersonally while the naturalist writer is an artist of temperament He was a major figure in the political liberalization of France and in the exoneration of the falsely accused and convicted army officer Alfred Dreyfus which is encapsulated in the renowned newspaper headline J Accuse Zola was nominated for the first and second Nobel Prize in Literature in 1901 and 1902
