The Great Wall and the Empty Fortress Andrew J. Nathan, Robert S. Ross, 1998 Many see China and the United States on the path to confrontation The Chinese leadership violates human rights norms It maintains a harsh rule in Tibet spars aggressively with Taiwan and is clamping down on Hong Kong A rising power with enormous assets China increasingly considers American interests an obstacle to its own But the authors argue the United States is the least of China's problems Despite its sheer size economic vitality and drive to upgrade its military forces China remains a vulnerable power crowded on all sides by powerful rivals and potential foes As it has throughout its history China faces immense security challenges and their sources are at and within China's own borders China's foreign policy is calibrated to defend its territorial integrity against antagonists who are numerous near and strong The authors trace the implications of this central point for China's relations with the United States and the rest of the world

Modernism and the Machinery of Madness Andrew Gaedtke, 2017-10-26 Modernism and the Machinery of Madness demonstrates the emergence of a technological form of paranoia within modernist culture which transformed much of the period's experimental fiction Gaedtke argues that the works of writers such as Samuel Beckett Anna Kavan Wyndham Lewis Mina Loy Evelyn Waugh and others respond to the collapse of categorical distinctions between human and machine Modern British and Irish novels represent a convergence between technological models of the mind and new media that were often regarded as thought influencing machines Gaedtke shows that this literary paranoia comes into new focus when read in light of twentieth century memoirs of mental illness By thinking across the discourses of experimental fiction mental illness psychiatry cognitive science and philosophy of mind this book shows the historical and conceptual sources of this confusion as well as the narrative responses This book contributes to the fields of modernist studies disability studies and medical humanities

Interactive Realism Daniel Mark Downes, 2005 It is commonplace in our digitized world to think that technology is the primary agent of psychological and social change In Interactive Realism Daniel Downes argues that it continues to be people who construct social reality through their interactions critiquing the transformative turn in media studies Distinguishing between the Internet a communication system and cyberspace an environment for human exchange the author provides a framework for exploring the metaphors and images used in cyberspace to represent and model social reality He clarifies how these symbolic interactions are linked to the technologies used to create store and transmit them and to their social context Drawing on examples from digital games web design film and photography the author shows how individual experiences are calibrated by technology and how digital communication contributes to broader processes such as community building and public memory Downes articulates a nuanced form of media ecology that does not focus on a single cause of change but rather on the relationships between embodied experience communication systems and representations Interactive Realism establishes a new method for understanding the importance of digital media to the construction of social reality
