

The falsificationist challenge to religious belief

- Philosophers of religion like Flew replaced the positivistic verification principle of meaning with a falsification principle of meaning
  - A statement is cognitively meaningful if and only if it is analytic or empirically falsifiable (i.e, it is possible to say upfront in which situations it is falsified)
- This principle leads to the falsificationist challenge to religious belief
  1. A statement has cognitive meaning if and only if it is analytic or empirically falsifiable (the falsification principle of meaning)
  2. Religious statements are neither analytic nor empirically falsifiable
  3. Therefore, religious statements are cognitively meaningless

Systematic Theology as a Rationally Justified Public Discourse about God Michael Agerbo Mørch,2023-01-23 For centuries it has been discussed whether systematic theology is a scientific discipline But it is not obvious what is meant by either systematic theology or scientific discipline Michael Agerbo Mørch presents an understanding of systematic theology as a tripartite discipline and science as a rationally justified public discourse about a given topic Systematic theology is shown to meet the most generally accepted criteria for scientific work since its theories can be tested and even falsified in an intersubjective setting This can be done by the most proper tool we have for assessing and comparing scientific theories which is coherence theory Therefore even though systematic theology is a distinct and normative discipline it is not compromising for its theories because it can present its theses in a transparent way that can be checked and criticized by peers and compared to relevant alternatives As such the book shows that systematic theology is a scientifically strong discourse that meets accepted criteria to the same degree as other disciplines

Reading Nietzsche through the Ancients Matthew Meyer, 2014-07-28 Nietzsche's work was shaped by his engagement with ancient Greek philosophy Matthew Meyer analyzes Nietzsche's concepts of becoming and perspectivism and his alleged rejection of the principle of non contradiction and he traces these views back to the Heraclitean Protagorean position that Plato and Aristotle critically analyze in the Theaetetus and Metaphysica IV respectively At the center of this Heraclitean Protagorean position is a relational ontology in which everything exists and is what it is only in relation to something else Meyer argues that this relational ontology is not only theoretically foundational for Nietzsche's philosophical project in that it is the common element in Nietzsche's views on becoming perspectivism and the principle of non contradiction but also textually foundational in that Nietzsche implicitly commits himself to such an ontology in raising the question of opposites at the beginning of both Human All Too Human and Beyond Good and Evil
