

Family Contract

Use this outline of a family contract as a starting point. Re-word the points into your own language and for age appropriateness. At the bottom add-in whatever your standard consequence is going to be; two weeks of complete device lock-down (including phones) is a good solid place to start. It makes discipline easier later if everyone already knows what the consequence is going to be ahead of time.

Each child should get their own version of the contract, and then it should be signed by the child and both parents.

- My personal online safety is my first priority.
- I understand that my safety is also my parent's first priority and that sometimes my parents may need to limit: the time I spend online, the places I go online, and who I communicate with online.
- I understand that my parents may choose to take my devices away whenever they feel it is appropriate.
- I understand that this contract applies to all electronics including computers, tablets, smartphones, iTouch, gaming consoles, PC gaming, handheld games, and any other device I might have access to – even those that don't belong to me.
- I understand that these rules apply to me even when I'm using someone else's device or I am in someone else's home.
- I understand that mom and dad are going to be placing limits on how often I can use my devices and that we will have a time in the evening when all devices are turned in and shut off. I understand that this rule will be applied to all of my friends during a sleepover.
- I know that there are people online who use fake accounts in order to hurt children. Because of this you can never really be 100% sure who anyone is online.
- I understand that once you post something it is impossible to take back. I understand that Snapchat cannot delete my snaps or communications.
- I will always use an appropriate username or handle which contains NO self-identifying or sexualized content.
- I will not cross-promote my usernames in my social networking bios.
- I will provide and maintain a list of my username and passwords for my parents at all times, this includes the screen lock on devices. If I change a username or password without updating the list, I understand that I will receive the standard consequence listed below.
- I will never share my login information with any of my friends or anyone besides my parents because I understand that someone might be a friend today, and not be a friend tomorrow.
- I will never post any personal information onto a social profile including: phone number, city, school name, team name, age, date of birth, etc.

Sticking Together Jaclyn S. Gerstein, 2013-08-21. First published in 2000. Experiential family counseling is an action-oriented approach to family therapy. Through the use of structured games and physical and intellectual challenges, many clinicians find that they are able to gain insight into the behaviors and responses that perpetuate a family's problems. While traditional treatment methods often become bogged down in verbal sparring or blame placing between family members, experiential counseling calls for families to work together to succeed in overcoming obstacles that are set before them. And because many experiential activities can be designed as metaphors for a family's individual problems, counselors using this treatment method are given an excellent opportunity to help families practice actual solutions that can be used in their daily interactions and experiences In Sticking Together Jackie Gerstein has given therapists and family counselors a wonderful tool for introducing experiential counseling into their own practices In addition to a thoughtful overview of the general uses and benefits of this unique technique she also provides practical guidelines for developing experiential family counseling sessions Key features include A core section of experiential activities games and exercises for family therapy Cautions that should be observed when using these activities with certain populations Detailed processing questions with each exercise that can help families to interpret the results of experiential activities Suggestions to encourage family goal setting A discussion on the need for ongoing assessment during the course of experiential therapy Samples of important documents necessary in experiential therapy programs including performance agreements and informed consent forms With an easy to use format Sticking Together offers readers an extensive selection of family building initiatives that promise to introduce fun into the vocabulary of family therapy
