Historical Anthropology of the Family Martine Segalen, 1986-11-28 Over the past decade or so the social scientific sociological analysis of the family has been obliged to reconsider its traditional view that industrialisation triggered a shift within society from the large family which fulfilled all social functions from socialising the children to caring for the sick and the old to the modern nuclear family which was regarded solely as being the locus for emotional relationships Historians have shown that in the past there was a variety of family structures within a range of varying demographic economic and cultural frameworks distinctive for each society At the same time the interaction between sociology and social anthropology has led to a clearer conceptual analysis of that vague polysemic term family and notions of dwelling place descent marriage the relative roles of husband and wife and parent child relations as well as the more general relations between generations have in a variety of past and present social contexts been taken apart and analysed In this book the author synthesises European and North American historical and social anthropological material on the family that shows the reversal of the frequently held view of the family as an institution in decline showing it instead to be both dynamic and resistant
