Family In Egypt Foreword By Penelope Lively:

A Family in Egypt Mary Rowlatt, 2004 A Family in Egypt is a fascinating reflection of life in Egypt over a period of a hundred and thirty years culminating in the nineteen fifties the account of the Rowlatt family's five generation association with Egypt serves up some sharp and telling insights into the changing fortunes of the country and also the role of foreigners From the Foreword by Penelope Lively

Books In Print 2004-2005 Ed Bowker Staff, Staff Bowker, Ed, 2004 The Lark E. Nesbit, 2018-02-01 A charming and brilliantly entertaining novel shot through with the light hearted Nesbit touch Penelope Lively from the introduction When did two girls of our age have such a chance as we've got to have a lark entirely on our own No chaperone no rules no No present income or future prospects said Lucilla It's 1919 and Jane and her cousin Lucilla leave school to find that their guardian has gambled away their money leaving them with only a small cottage in the English countryside In an attempt to earn their living the orphaned cousins embark on a series of misadventures cutting flowers from their front garden and selling them to passers by inviting paying guests who disappear without paying all the while endeavouring to stave off the attentions of male admirers in a bid to secure their independence To come upon any Nesbit today hitherto unread is like receiving a letter from a friend whom you have believed dead New York Times A wry charming delight of a book The Pool

Life Writing and the End of Empire Emma Parker, 2024-03-21 The dismantlement of the British Empire had a profound impact on many celebrated white Anglophone writers of the twentieth century particularly those who were raised in former British colonial territories and returned to the metropole after the Second World War Formal decolonisation meant that these authors were unable to go home to their colonial childhoods a historical juncture with profound consequences for how they wrote and recorded their own lives Moving beyond previous discussions of imperial and colonial nostalgia Life Writing and the End of Empire is the first critical study of white memoirists and autobiographers who rewrote their memories of empire across numerous life narratives By focussing on these processual homecomings Emma Parker's study asks what it means to be at home in memories of empire whether in the settler farms of Southern Rhodesia or amidst the neon lights of Shanghai's International Settlement These discussions trace the legacies of empire to the habitations and detritus of everyday life from mansions and modest railway huts to empty swimming pools heirlooms and photograph albums Exploring works by Penelope Lively J G Ballard Doris Lessing and Janet Frame this study establishes new connections between authors usually discussed for their fiction and who have been hitherto unrecognised as post imperial life writers Offering close sustained analysis of autobiographies memoirs travel narratives and autofictions and identifying new subgenres such as speculative life writing this book advances rich new readings of autobiographical narrative By tracing the continuing importance of colonialism to white subjectivity the role of imperial memory in Britain and the ways that these unsettling forces move beneath the surface of modern and contemporary literature this study offers new conceptual insights to the fields of life writing and postcolonial studies

for clubs cricket and hunting the planting of English gardens by the British in India reflected an understandable need on the part of expatriates to replicate home as much as possible in an alien environment In Flora's Empire Eugenia W Herbert argues that more than simple nostalgia or homesickness lay at the root of this garden imperialism however Drawing on a wealth of period illustrations and personal accounts many of them little known she traces the significance of gardens in the long history of British relations with the subcontinent To British eyes she demonstrates India was an untamed land that needed the visible stamp of civilization that gardens in their many guises could convey Colonial gardens changed over time from the garden houses of eighteenth century nabobs modeled on English country estates to the herbaceous borders gravel walks and well trimmed lawns of Victorian civil servants As the British extended their rule they found that hill stations like Simla offered an ideal retreat from the unbearable heat of the plains and a place to coax English flowers into bloom Furthermore India was part of the global network of botanical exploration and collecting that gathered up the world's plants for transport to great imperial centers such as Kew And it is through colonial gardens that one may track the evolution of imperial ideas of governance Every Government House and Residency was carefully landscaped to reflect current ideals of an ordered society At Independence in 1947 the British left behind a lasting legacy in their gardens one still reflected in the design of parks and information technology campuses and in the horticultural practices of home gardeners who continue to send away to England for seeds

Life in the Garden Penelope Lively, 2019-06-11 From the Booker Prize winner and national bestselling author reflections on gardening art literature and life Penelope Lively takes up her key themes of time and memory and her lifelong passions for art literature and gardening in this philosophical and poetic memoir From the courtyards of her childhood home in Cairo to a family cottage in Somerset to her own gardens in Oxford and London Lively conducts an expert tour taking us from Eden to Sissinghurst and into her own backyard traversing the lives of writers like Virginia Woolf and Philip Larkin while imparting her own sly and spare wisdom Her body of work proves that certain themes never go out of fashion writes the New York Times Book Review as true of this beautiful volume as of the rest of the Lively canon Now in her eighty-fourth year Lively muses To garden is to elide past present and future it is a defiance of time

Cartographic Fictions Karen Lynnea Piper, 2002 Maps are stories as much about us as about the landscape They reveal changing perceptions of the natural world as well as conflicts over the acquisition of territories Cartographic Fictions looks at maps in relation to journals correspondence advertisements and novels by authors such as Joseph Conrad and Michael Ondaatje In her innovative study Karen Piper follows the history of cartography through three stages the establishment of the prime meridian the development of aerial photography and the emergence of satellite and computer mapping Piper follows the cartographer's impulse to leave the ground as the desire to escape the racialized or gendered subject With the distance that the aerial view provided maps could then be produced objectively that is devoid of problematic native interference Piper attempts to bring back the dialogue of the native informant demonstrating how maps have historically constructed or betrayed anxieties about race The book also attempts to bring back key areas of contact to the map between explorer native and masculine feminine definitions of space American Book Publishing Record ,2003 Journal of Commonwealth and Postcolonial Studies ,2001
