Family Violence Volume 2 Relationship Violence:

Family Violence: Relationship violence James Makepeace, 1999-02 A collection of readings from interdisciplinary materials The material is geared toward advanced undergraduate courses as well as graduate courses in sociology social work or other courses where the study of family violence is a major component Major scholars both academic and practitioners are included and interested instructors will recognize well known names and research Now in a second edition these readers contain recently published articles and selections concerned with family violence in other cultures Family Violence, 1985 Home Truths About Domestic Violence Jalna Hanmer, Catherine Itzin, 2013-09-13 While men's violence to women is an everyday culturally supported activity this reader demonstrates that men's violence can be curtailed and that women and children can be assisted effectively that state policies and provision can be improved and that women can actively participate in the resolution of their difficulties Bringing together new work and key papers Home Truths About Domestic Violence provides a comprehensive overview and up to date account of the progress so far and identifies what still needs to be done Areas covered include women's experience of violence children's experience of violence personal experiences of the justice system state policies on violence in the US and UK educational programmes and initiatives This substantial Reader makes a significant contribution to the understanding of domestic violence from both a policy and a practice perspective Together with its companion volume Home Truths About Child Sexual Abuse it provides an in depth resource for a wide range of teachers students and professionals highlighting the diverse and complex dimensions of the problem of domestic violence Understanding and Preventing Violence, Volume 3 National Research Council, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Commission on Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Panel on the Understanding and Control of Violent Behavior, 1994-02-01 This volume examines social influences on violent events and violent behavior particularly concentrating on how the risks of violent criminal offending and victimization are influenced by communities social situations and individuals the role of spouses and intimates the differences in violence levels between males and females and the roles of psychoactive substances in violent events Perceptions of Female Offenders, Vol. 2 Brenda Russell, Celia Torres, 2023-11-27 This new edition is a nuanced exploration of female involvement in various crimes from delinquency domestic violence sexual assault and homicide that resonates with the pulse of contemporary society In an age where many events are tweeted and debated online this book delves into the intricate ways social media portrays female offenders and how this can distort public perceptions and effect legal outcomes Volume two includes recent research and theory examining how female perpetration is intricately related to gender roles that persist within the criminal justice system and often lead to gender disparities in treatment criminal justice response and sentencing and calls into question long held beliefs and systems that might not be as impartial as they appear The compelling nature of this volume addresses the complex relationship between trauma and offending and examines crucial subjects like partner violence homicide and the unique challenges faced by trans women within the criminal justice system and examines the myths associated with female offending and how that bleeds into criminal justice response It addresses theories that provide insight into female offending and sentencing and offers ways to generate gender inclusiveness This volume invites researchers practitioners and advocates for justice to join a vital conversation and develop a more informed and equitable criminal justice response Researching Domestic Abuse and Sexual Violence Claire McLoone-Richards, 2023-08-25 This book offers a critical examination of the ethical and moral challenges in conducting research about domestic abuse or sexual violence from the perspectives of student practitioners and novice researchers within various professional disciplines offering rich insights based on the experiences of each author Including the research expertise of academics in this field and importantly the experiences of student practitioners in conducting their research the book explores practice informed research and research informed practice in relation to the examination of a range of issues and themes related to DA and SV All contributors consider the challenges and reflect on the salient issues related to their ethical research and with some of the research conducted during the global pandemic of COVID 19 they also reflect on these additional challenges and how they sought to address them The reader is invited to consider the different national and international gendered cultural and social contexts of DA and SV from early childhood to old age With a constant thread of critical reflection they are encouraged to think about their own positionality to the unfolding discussions within each chapter and how these may relate to their professional practice their research and their professional values Overall the book sets out to

- 1 articulate the dominant theoretical frameworks that have sought to offer explanations about domestic abuse and sexual violence within the research problems presented by the student practitioners
- 2 evaluate the significance of the legislation and policy provision within the UK in service provision and interventions for victims and perpetrators
- 3 showcase best practice examples of research studies on domestic abuse and sexual violence based on the experiences of student practitioners
- 4 promote a critical appraisal of the self and the positionality of the practitioner as researcher through reflection on their personal and professional development and
- 5 reflect on the impact of the shadow pandemic on the experiences of vulnerable individuals and the challenges of conducting research ethically and safely

This is essential reading for students either currently engaged in or with aspirations to work in professional practice in the DA and SV sectors It is also useful for students on related graduate MA professional courses practitioners in social work health care criminal justice counselling and particularly in the multi faceted women s sector It will also appeal to final year students undertaking primary research in social work health care women s studies and criminology

Routledge Library Editions: Domestic Abuse Various, 2021-03-11 This set of 7 volumes originally published between 1984 and 1998 provides illuminating and practical information on Domestic Abuse Aimed at both students and practitioners across a range of disciplines the volumes explore topics including provision of services for domestic abuse victims the law homelessness advice for those coming into contact with violence and victims of abuse public policy and the experience of domestic abuse victims themselves Rethinking Domestic Violence Audrey Mullender,2002-09-11 This book explodes the myths concerning domestic violence and explores how the responses of social workers and probation officers to the people involved need to be far better coordinated and more effective Femicide Kate Fitz-Gibbon,Sandra Walklate,2025-08-12 Femicide considers how theory research activism policy and prevention in different contemporary environments impact on how femicide is defined understood and prevented The debates explored within this book pose particular challenges for practitioners in developing effective risk informed prevention Domestic Violence and Mental Health Louise Howard,Gene Feder,Roxanne Agnew-Davies,2013-05 People with mental health problems are more likely to be a victim of domestic violence than the general population This text offers practical guidance on how mental health professionals can identify and respond to domestic violence experienced by their patients Family Violence Douglas J. Besharov,1990 Contains papers prepared for an American Enterprise Institute conference held March 20 to 23 1987 Page 236 A Restorative Approach to Family Violence Anne Hayden,Loraine Gelsthorpe,Allison Morris,2016-03-16 This volume provides an essential update on current thinking practice and research into the use of restorative justice in the area of family violence It contains contemporary empirical theoretical and practical perspectives on the use of restorative justice for intimate partner and family violence including sexual violence and elder abuse Whilst raising issues relating to the implications of reporting it provides a fresh look at victims issues as well as providing accounts of those who have participated in restorative justice processes and who have been victims of abusive relationships Contributions are included from a wide range of perspectives to provide a balanced approach that is not simply polemic or advocating Rather the book genuinely raises the issue for debate with the advantage of bringing into the open new research which has not been widely published previously Given its unique experience in the development of restorative justice the book includes empirical studies relating to New Zealand contextualized within the global situation by the inclusion of perspectives on practices in the UK Australia and North America This book will be key reading for people who work with violent offending of a family nature as well as for those who are interested in the study of family violence Mothering on the Edge Brooke Richardson,2022-08-13 This book brings critical scholarly attention to the systematic positioning and subjective experiences of mothers involved in child protection processes in risk based child protection systems Parton Thorpe and Wattam Connolley Swift and Callahan While mothers are typically the primary focus of child protection prevention and investigations Azzopardi et al Fallon et al Swift and Callahan their gendered experiences challenges and triumphs are seldom given space in the academic literature practice and or public spaces to be seen or heard Chapters in this volume build on existing literature to illustrate the structural positioning and or lived experiences of mothers who come into contact with child protection for a variety of reasons substance abuse positive HIV status child injury fetal alcohol syndrome colonial assessment methodologies young age incarceration childbirth and intimate partner violence This book offers three unique contributions to existing literature on mothering in child protection First it creates space for mothers involved in child protection to have their voices heard Second it acknowledges the centrality of mothers subjective experience in keeping children safe Finally it challenges dominant often dehumanizing narratives of mothers involved in child protection through providing a more nuanced understanding of their lives Ultimately this anthology calls for a fundamental rethinking of how mothers involved in child protection proceedings are conceptualized in child protection research policy and practice It is recommended that mothers voices must be central to humanely reforming child protection systems

Homicide M. Dwayne Smith, Margaret A. Zahn, 1999 A set of chapters prepared by leading figures currently engaged in the study of homicide Each chapter provides a review and summary of research literatures that deal with social theories of homicide methodological problems in the study of homicide research among specific groups and public policy reactions designed to prevent homicide

Confronting Chronic Neglect Institute of Medicine, Board on Children, Youth, and Families, Committee on the Training Needs of Health Professionals to Respond to Family Violence, 2002-04-04 As many as 20 to 25 percent of American adults or one in every four people have been victimized by witnesses of or perpetrators of family violence in their lifetimes Family violence affects more people than cancer yet it is an issue that receives far less attention Surprisingly many assume that health professionals are deliberately turning a blind eye to this traumatic social problem The fact is very little is being done to educate health professionals about family violence Health professionals are often the first to encounter victims of abuse and neglect and therefore they play a critical role in ensuring that victims as well as perpetrators get the help they need Yet despite their critical role studies continue to describe a lack of education for health professionals about how to identify and treat family violence And those that have been trained often say that despite their education they feel ill equipped or lack support from by their employers to deal with a family violence victim sometimes resulting in a failure to screen for abuse during a clinical encounter Equally problematic the few curricula in existence often lack systematic and rigorous evaluation This makes it difficult to say whether or not the existing curricula even works

Confronting Chronic

Neglect offers recommendations such as creating education and research centers that would help raise awareness of the problem on all levels. In addition, it recommends ways to involve health care professionals in taking some responsibility for responding to this difficult and devastating issue. Perhaps even more importantly, Confronting Chronic Neglect encourages society as a whole to share responsibility. Health professionals alone cannot solve this complex problem. Responding to victims of family violence and ultimately preventing its occurrence is a societal responsibility.

Domestic Violence Perpetrators John Devaney, Anne Lazenbatt, 2016-07-15 Domestic violence is a serious widespread public social and health problem that affects the lives of many women, children, and men. There is also evidence to suggest it has one of the highest rates of recidivism. This comprehensive book provides an overview of what the research tells us about the perpetrators of domestic violence and what works and what doesn't in promoting positive change. Collecting together the most up-to-date evidence from the international literature and bringing psychological, sociological, gendered, and socio-political theoretical perspectives to bear on the issue, the authors explore what domestic violence is, why it happens, and how it can be measured, who the perpetrators of domestic violence are, including discussion of non-stereotypical patterns such as male victims, female perpetrators, couples where the abuse is mutual, and couples with abusive relationships who want the abuse to end but the relationship to be sustained, strategies for engaging perpetrators in interventions, and for promoting behaviour change, evidence-informed interventions, programmes, and policies for working with perpetrators where robust evidence is lacking, and more research needs to be undertaken. Domestic violence is a significant problem for those individuals and families whose life is affected by this issue, the social health and criminal justice agencies that respond to it, and wider society which must bear the costs and its devastating effects. This volume is an important reference for all those researching and working with the victims, survivors, and perpetrators of domestic violence, including academics and students from fields such as social work, sociology, criminology, psychology, and social policy.

Handbook of Gender Research in Psychology Joan C. Chrisler, Donald R. McCreary, 2010-03-12 Donald R. McCreary and Joan C. Chrisler The Development of Gender Studies in Psychology Studies of sex differences are as old as the field of psychology and they have been conducted in every sub-field of the discipline. There are probably many reasons for the popularity of these studies, but three reasons seem to be most prominent. First, social psychological studies of person perception show that sex is especially salient in social groups. It is the first thing people notice about others, and it is one of the things we remember best. Fiske, Haslam, Stangor, Lynch, Duan, Glass, 1992. For example, people may not remember who uttered a witty remark, but they are likely to remember whether the quip came from a woman or a man. Second, many people hold firm beliefs that aspects of physiology suit men and women for particular social roles. Men's greater upper body strength makes them better candidates for manual labor, and their greater height gives the impression that they would make good leaders, i.e., people we look up to. Women's reproductive capacity and the caretaking tasks, e.g., breastfeeding, baby minding, that accompany it, make them seem suitable for other roles that require gentleness and nurturance Third the logic that underlies hypothesis testing in the sciences is focused on difference Researchers design their studies with the hope that they can reject the null hypothesis that experimental groups do not differ

Feminism Counts Christina Hughes,Rachel Cohen,2013-09-13 This is an important and timely text that provides a unique overview of contemporary quantitative approaches to gender research The contributors are internationally recognised researchers from the UK USA and Sweden who occupy a range of disciplinary locations including historical demography sociology and policy studies Their research includes explorations of heterosexual and same sex violence media responses to feminist research data sources for the study of equalities approaches for analysing global and local demographic change and intersectional concerns in respect of work and employment Through detailed sophisticated and thoughtful considerations of the place of quantification within gender studies and the place of feminist approaches to quantification each contributor overturns the stereotype that quantitative research is antithetical to feminism by demonstrating its importance for challenging continuing global inequalities associated with gendered outcomes An introductory chapter illustrates the significance of geography and discipline in the take up of methodological preferences Feminism Counts Quantitative Methods and Researching Gender makes an important contribution to the ways in which feminists respond to contemporary methodological and interdisciplinary challenges and is essential reading for all research students in gender studies This book was originally published as a special issue of the International Journal of Social Research Methodology

Autonomy and Human Rights in Health Care David N. Weisstub,Guillermo Díaz Pintos,2007-12-20 Autonomy and Human Rights in Healthcare An International Perspective is a group of essays published in memory of David Thomasma one of the leading humanists in the field of bioethics during the twentieth century A pioneer in the field of multidisciplinary research having integrated major theological and philosophical traditions in the west with modern science Thomasma was a role model to the authors who have devoted essays to his major avenues of inquiry The authors represent many different countries and disciplines throughout the globe The volume deals with the pressing issue of how to ground a universal bioethics in the context of the conflicted world of combative cultures and perspectives
