The Builder ,1878 Popular Electricity and the World's Advocate ,1911 Popular Electricity and the World's Advance Henry Walter Young,1911 Constantinople to Córdoba Michael Greenhalgh,2012-08-01 A survey of the various ways in which the extensive remains of ancient architecture were reused or destroyed in the crescent from Greece and Turkey through Syria Palestine North Africa to Islamic Spain The book complements and echoes some of the themes in the author s Marble Past Monumental Present 2009 Offering a large number of varied examples it examines how the ancient landscape was transformed towns roads and ports fountains and waterways tombs palaces villas and inscriptions It then addresses reuse in churches mosques and other structures dealing also with collectors and museum builders Also considered are the dismantling and transport of the often massive blocks and the superstitions surrounding antiquities which contributed to their continuing renown or to their destruction Ocean Steamships: A Popular Account of their Construction, Development, Management and Appliances F. E. Chadwick,John H. Gould,J. D. J. Kelley,William H. Rideing,A. E. Seaton,2020-09-28 IT is a wonderful fact in the swift expansion of mechanical knowledge and appliances of the last hundred years that while for unknown ages the wind was the only propelling force used for purposes of navigation apart from the rude application of power through oars worked by men the whole scheme of steam transport has grown practically to its present wonderful perfection within the lifetime of men yet living Of course the idea as is that of all great inventions was one of slow growth It cropped up at various stages through the eighteenth century and there are faint evidences of gropings in this direction in the latter part of the seventeenth but these latter were not much more definite than the embodiment of the idea of the telegraph in Puck s girdle round the earth and the evidence that men really thought of propelling boats by steam is very meagre until we come to the pamphlet written by Jonathan Hulls in 1737 in which he gave utterance to a very clear and distinct idea in the matter It struggled through a very backward infancy of fifty years and more certain memorable names appearing now and then to help it along as that of Watt without whose improvements in the steam engine it must still have remained in swaddling clothes Fitch De Jouffroy Rumsey Symington and finally Fulton who however much he may have learned from his predecessors has unquestionably the credit of putting afloat the first commercially successful steamboat He is thus worthy of all the honor accorded him much of it came too late as he died at the comparatively early age of fifty after passing through the harassments which seem naturally to lie in the path of the innovator A graphic history of the wonderful changes wrought in this great factor of the world s progress was set forth during the summer of 1886 at the International Exhibition at Liverpool where by model and drawing the various steps were made more completely visible and tangible than perhaps ever before True the relics of the earlier phases of the steamship age when its believers were but few and generally of small account were sparse but the exhibits of later models from the date of the inception of transatlantic traffic preparations for which were begun in earnest by laying down the steamship Great Western in 1836 were frequent enough and the whole of the steps in the development of the means of ocean traffic from then till now were sufficiently well shown
