

Ways to Recognize Emotional Blackmail

To recognize emotional blackmail, look for patterns of manipulative behavior such as threats, guilt-tripping, or playing the victim. Pay attention to feelings of fear, obligation, or guilt after interactions with the person in question. A sudden shift in emotional tone and repeated promises or threats that never happen can also be red flags signaling emotional blackmail.

Emotional Blackmail
Susan Forward, Donna Frazier, 2019-07-30

A practical guide to better communication that will break the blackmail cycle for good by one of the nation's leading therapists. Susan Forward helps you identify and correct an intensely destructive and confusing pattern of relating with those you love. I highly recommend this important book.

Susan Jeffers, Ph.D., author of Feel the Fear and Do It Anyway. If you really loved me. After all I've done for you. How can you be so selfish? Do any of the above sound familiar? They're all examples of emotional blackmail, a powerful form of manipulation in which people close to us threaten to punish us for not doing what they want. Emotional blackmailers know how much we value our relationships with them. They know our vulnerabilities and our deepest secrets. They are our mothers, our partners, our bosses, and coworkers, our friends, and our lovers. And no matter how much they care about us, they use this intimate knowledge to give themselves the payoff they want: our compliance. Susan Forward knows what pushes our hot buttons. Just as John Gray illuminates the communications gap between the sexes in Men Are from Mars, Women Are from Venus, and Harriet Lerner describes an intricate dynamic in The Dance of Anger, so Susan Forward presents the anatomy of a relationship damaged by manipulation and gives readers an arsenal of tools to fight back.
