The Family and the School: A Joint Systems Approach to Problems with Children

Edited by Emilia Dowling and Elsie Osborne

London, England: Routledge & Kegan Paul, 1965. 203 + xvii pp., $24.95 (cloth), $14.95 (paper).

The Family and the School discusses and describes mental health interventions with families within the Clinic of the Department for Children and Parents, Tavistock Clinic, London, England. Within this framework, it also describes an approach to working in schools. The clinic staff, recognizing the referred child as an entry point into a number of relevant systems rather than as the focus for intervention, developed therapeutic strategies which brought the family and school together. They paid particular attention to the interaction between schools and families when educational problems arise with children.

Although the emphasis of this book is on work with families and schools, the relationship between a social agency and a school emerges as a secondary theme. There is reexamination today of the relationship between social agencies and the schools, and current literature describes a number of successful joint ventures. The Family and the School is an excellent addition to this literature. The clinic staff undoubtedly provides a valuable service to the schools which they serve.

The work done through the Tavistock Clinic is similar to services provided by School Social Workers in many school districts in the United States. Whether the service they describe, however, is provided by mental health personnel as employees of the school or an agency is immaterial. The important contribution of the authors is the presentation of guidelines for developing and maintaining transactions between the family and the school and their subsystems in order to bridge the professional gap between education and family therapy. The research design described in Chapter 4 of the book is a good example of this team's contribution in this area. The authors of this Chapter, Emilia Dowling, Muriel Barrett, Valery Golding and Denise Taylor, describe a project designed to evaluate the effectiveness of their interventions with families by utilizing clinical research methodology with their clinical practice. Barrett developed an interesting research tool to record interactions during the family interview. With the use of videotaping and a team approach (one therapist and several hidden observers), the clinicians were able to examine the relationship between factors common in family interactions and certain mani-

The Family and the School Emilia Dowling, Elsie L. Osborne, 1985      The Family and the School Emilia Dowling, Elsie Osborne, 2020-07-24 This edition has been revised and updated to include more material specifically related to work with schools It reflects the major changes in society in legislation and in the nature of the interaction between families and the education system in the last decade The contributors all have links with the Child and Family Department of the Tavistock Clinic and include educational psychologists working with schools and hospitals family therapists child and family psychiatrists and teachers      The Effective Teacher's Guide to Behavioural, Emotional and Social Difficulties Michael Farrell, 2006-05-23 Taking into account the very latest developments in the field of Special Educational Needs this book provides busy teachers with a straightforward yet thorough overview of the basic theories surrounding behaviour The book also looks at the range of strategies that can be used in the classroom and how their effectiveness can be assessed The range of strategies presented and explained include the cognitive approach the systems based approach the behavioural approach the psychodynamic approach Also included is a chapter devoted to supporting pupils with Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder The chapter contains new information on identifying and assessing the condition and suggests effective intervention strategies such as developing self esteem and interpersonal skills      Taking Issue Megan Crawford, Richard

Edwards, Lesley Kidd, 2013-10-18 The partner to Telling Tales this reader looks at a range of perspectives on a number of key issues emerging from the area of guidance and counselling in education Questions of ethics equality and impartiality and their relationship to guidance and counselling in the context of learning are explored The book also examines the trend towards group work and the role of technology in creating strategies for guidance Written for a new module on the Open University MA in Education      Excluded From School Sue Rendall, Morag Stuart, 2012-12-06 Excluded From School exposes the reasons why despite many national and local initiatives large numbers of children continue to tax the education system to such a degree that they become permanently excluded from school Sue Rendall and Morag Stuart draw on their experience in psychology and education to demonstrate the need for a more thorough exploration of the underlying root causes of the problem. Based on a systemic framework, their approach allows the inclusion of a vast range of possible contributory factors within the child, within the family, within the school, and within the complex interrelations between these three systems. By demonstrating the need for inter-discipline and inter-agency collaboration, the authors succeed in presenting a persuasive challenge to the blame culture which exists between schools, parents, and educational professionals and policymakers in relation to school exclusion. The original research presented here, along with the inclusion of the experiences of children, parents, and teachers, provides a valuable new perspective on the problem of school exclusions that will be welcomed by all professionals working in this field.

Working with Children and Parents through Separation and Divorce Emilia Dowling, Gill Gorell Barnes, 2020-04-28 Supporting children and families through separation and divorce is a major area of concern in contemporary society. However, it is sometimes hard for those professionals who are helping families to hear the voice of the child in this process. Writing from their wide experience as clinicians working with children and families, Emilia Dowling and Gill Gorell Barnes set out in this book to address this gap and allow the child to be heard. Working with Children and Parents through Separation and Divorce combines research with clinical and practical approaches to working with families going through stressful changes linked to separation or divorce. Attention is given to the wider context of children's lives, with the implications for general practice, schools, and other services addressed in special chapters. A focused approach to divorce-related problems that takes each family member's view into account is illustrated. Combining individual and family work helps parents to resolve difficulties, enabling children troubled by parental separation to progress with their own lives. This book is essential reading for front-line professionals as well as specialists who encounter children and families going through this life transition in the course of their work.

The School-Savvy Therapist Mary Eno, 2019-09-10 When it comes to therapy with kids, collaborating with schools and families is essential. Kids encounter problems at school that run the gamut from school violence to complex systemic problems rooted in poverty or racism to daily struggles with homework or making friends. Therapists who work with kids typically do not receive training about when and how to contact schools or about how to work with them collaboratively. The School Savvy Therapist by Dr. Mary Eno provides a framework, tools, and guidelines for doing just that. Drawing on research, illustrative case examples, and interviews, this practical resource describes what therapists need to know about schools and how they can effectively foster a supportive child-family-school dynamic. From reviewing test results, conducting school observations, and attending family-school meetings to helping parents advocate for their kids and more, this book will help therapists understand the critical role they play in supporting kids who struggle at school. Checklists, questions, and specific guidelines are provided so that both novice and experienced therapists can engage in this work with skill and confidence.

Multi-Family Therapy Eia Asen, 2010 Multi-Family Therapy (MFT) involves the bringing together of different families in a therapeutic context in order to work jointly to overcome each of their specific and very individual problems This innovative book combines the theory and concepts of MFT with detailed practical examples of techniques and exercises which have been proven to help with problematic children teenagers and adults In this book Asen and Scholz discuss how MFT has been developed over the past 30 years and has been applied nationally and internationally across a range of settings with a variety of clients including Children and teenagers who are excluded from school Multi problem families with abuse and violence who challenge social workers and the legal system and Children teenagers and adults who present with mental health issues Multi Family Therapy Concepts and Techniques is written for professionals in mental health social work and education Its unique pragmatic approach makes it an essential guide for anyone wishing to employ MFT
