Practice Murray Bowen, 1985 When Bowen was a student and practitioner of classical psychoanalysis at the Menninger Clinic he became engrossed in understanding the process of schizophrenia and its relationship to mother child symbiosis Between the years 1950 and 1959 at Menninger and later at the National Institute of Mental Health as first chief of family studies he worked clinically with over 500 schizophrenic families This extensive experience was a time of fruition for his thinking as he began to conceptualize human behavior as emerging from within the context of a family system Later at Georgetown University Medical School Bowen worked to extend the application of his ideas to the neurotic family system Initially he saw his work as an amplification and modification of Freudian theory but later viewed it as an evolutionary step toward understanding human beings as functioning within their primary network their family One of the most renowned theorist and therapist in the field of family work this book encompasses the breadth and depth of Bowen s contributions It presents the evolution of Bowen s Family Theory from his earliest essays on schizophrenic families and their treatment through the development of his concepts of triangulation intergenerational conflict and societal regression and culminating in his brilliant exploration of the differentiation of one s self in one s family of origin Family Transitions Celia Jaes Falicov, 1991-07-01

Of all concepts used by family therapists the family development framework is among the least studied in spite of its relevance to understanding spontaneous family change and to facilitating therapeutic intervention The notion that a developmental difficulty underlies the appearance of clinical symptoms has become a time honored tradition in family therapy just as it has been in individual therapy Yet unlike the well established and well researched models of child and adult development those in family development are rudimentary Despite increasing interest in the family life cycle as a framework for family therapy relatively little has been done to elucidate the specific dimensions and processes of spontaneous and therapeutically induced change over the family life cycle This volume gathers original contributions of some of the most prominent family theorists researchers and clinicians of our time to improve our understanding of these important and hitherto neglected domains The book opens with a comprehensive overview by the editor that outlines contributions to the family life cycle framework from family sociology and crisis theory This is followed by a comparative analysis of developmental thinking explicit or implicit in the theory and interventions of the major family therapy approaches Then divided into four parts FAMILY TRANSITIONS introduces new conceptual models that integrate the temporality of the life cycle approach with systems theory By their very nature these models cut across therapeutic orientations and have important clinical applications In Part II family therapy s views of development are freed from the confines of the therapist s office and placed in the context of other disciplines Chapters provide analysis of changing or static sociocultural values that can affect conceptions of development potential misuse of the concept of cultural identity in health mental health and education how family identity operates as a vehicle for cultural transmission over generations and family therapists assumptions about women s development The role of expected and unexpected events in the family life cycle is the focus of Part III Chapters on clinical approaches geared to dislocations of life cycle occurrences due to unexpected crises chronic illnesses loss or drug abuse provide illustrations of interventions that utilize enhance or potentially detract from the family s developmental flow Part IV explores the articulation of the life cycle framework within four major family therapy orientations intergenerational structural systemic and symbolic experiential Each of these chapters endeavors to elucidate what is the place of family development in each orientation concepts of continuity and change use of the concept of stages transitions or developmental tasks the specific dimensions that change in most families over time and the links between family dysfunction and life cycle issues Finally each chapter illustrates through clinical example assessment strategies formulation of treatment goals and interventions as these emerge from a particular life cycle model FAMILY TRANSITIONS presents a significant advance in our understanding of functional and dysfunctional family development and offers a range of interventions to promote developmental change It is an invaluable resource for clinical psychologists psychiatrists social workers and counselors that will also interest human development professionals family sociologists and family researchers FAMILY TRANSITIONS can serve as a developmentally oriented textbook for teaching family therapy in academic and professional settings Textbook of Couples and Family Therapy in Clinical Practice Ira D. aspects of the field of family psychology as a whole Special emphasis is given to systematic structural approaches to assessing individual and family functioning Part II focuses on the use of the FAST in developmental research For example the the FAST has been used to show how family constructs are influenced by age type of family and situation Part III deals with cross cultural issues and compares the interpersonal constructs of Japanese and Chinese families to Western families Finally Part IV addresses the applications of the FAST in clinical setting in diagnosis of biopsychosocial problems and planning and evaluation of clinical interventions The result is a book that helps to bridge the gap between theory practice and research It will be essential reading for users of the FAST and all clinicians and researchers who work in family relations and development

Therapy Thieves Francis A. Martin, 2020-03-13 Acting on what started as a hunch Dr Francis Martin has cataloged well over 20 000 distinct approaches to counseling and psychotherapy that are advertised on the webpages of licensed practicing mental health providers No doubt some portion of them are harmful but the sheer volume of advertised practices and techniques often with names deceptively similar to actual evidence based practices should be cause for concern among all stakeholders in the helping professions from educators and researchers to policy makers and insurance companies and especially consumers Based on this significant original study and drawing from other research and supports Therapy Thieves describes a near universal crisis in the field and recommends ways to rescue mental health care from itself The crisis is caused by declining competence among counselors and psychotherapists who have failed to regulate themselves and who therefore deliver inadequate if not harmful services In presenting a simple yet powerful indictment of the field Dr Martin advocates for major reforms in several areas of mental health care including how prospective licensees are trained supervised and licensed a major reworking of professional ethics and the need to establish regulations for mental health care providers In short the book calls for major specific and urgently needed reforms Dual Diagnosis Joel Solomon, Sheldon Zimberg, Edward Shollar, 2013-06-29 Patients who have both a psychiatric disorder and a substance abuse problem cause most clinicians to throw up their hands in despair The clinical problems that these dual diagnosis patients present are enormously complex Diagnostically how is one to tell if disorders of mood and thinking for instance are signs of a mental illness or consequences of substance abuse How is one to obtain important historic information when the patient may be unable or unwilling to provide it and there are no readily available collateral sources of information In any case why bother Treatments for dually diagnosed patients are ineffective patients won't stay in treatment recidivism occurs at a very high rate To make matters even more difficult traditional health care reimbursement mechanisms do not provide for the multimodality clinical programs and special services needed by the patient who is both mentally ill and a substance abuser So the clinician needs an effective bureaucratic strategy as well as a treatment strategy For the most part clinicians have handled the problem by ignoring it
