The Grotesque Body in Early Christian Discourse Istvan Czachesz, 2014-10-14 Early Christian apocryphal and conical documents present us with grotesque images of the human body often combining the playful and humorous with the repulsive and fearful First to third century Christian literature was shaped by the discourse around and imagery of the human body This study analyses how the iconography of bodily cruelty and visceral morality was produced and refined from the very start of Christian history The sources range across Greek comedy Roman and Jewish demonology and metamorphosis traditions The study reveals how these images originated were adopted and were shaped to the service of a doctrinally and psychologically persuasive Christian message

The Book of Revelation Leonard L. Thompson, 1997-02-13 About seventy years after the death of Jesus John of Patmos sent visionary messages to Christians in seven cities of western Asia Minor These messages would eventually become part of the New Testament canon as The Book of Revelation What was John's message What was its literary form Did he write to a persecuted minority or to Christians enjoying the social and material benefits of the Roman Empire In search of answers to these penetrating questions Thompson critically examines the language literature history and social setting of the Book of the Apocalypse Following a discussion of the importance of the genre apocalypse he closely analyzes the form and structure of the Revelation its narrative and metaphoric unity the world created through John's visions and the social conditions of the empire in which John wrote He offers an unprecedented interpretation of the role of boundaries in Revelation a reassessment of the reign of the Emperor Domitian and a view of tribulation that integrates the literary vision of Revelation with the reality of the lives of ordinary people in a Roman province Throughout his study Thompson argues that the language of Revelation joins the ordinary to the extra ordinary earth to heaven and local conditions to supra human processes
