Specialist Periodical Reports provide systematic and detailed review coverage of progress in the major areas of chemical research. Written by experts in their specialist fields, the series creates a unique service for the active research chemist, supplying regular critical in-depth accounts of progress in particular areas of chemistry. For over 80 years, the Royal Society of Chemistry and its predecessor the Chemical Society have been publishing reports charting developments in chemistry, which originally took the form of Annual Reports. However, by 1967, the whole spectrum of chemistry could no longer be contained within one volume, and the series Specialist Periodical Reports was born. The Annual Reports themselves still existed but were divided into two, and subsequently three volumes covering Inorganic, Organic, and Physical Chemistry. For more general coverage of the highlights in chemistry, they remain a must. Since that time, the SPR series has altered according to the fluctuating degree of activity in various fields of chemistry. Some titles have remained unchanged, while others have altered their emphasis along with their titles; some have been combined under a new name, whereas others have had to be discontinued. The current list of Specialist Periodical Reports can be seen on the inside flap of this volume.

Electron Spin Resonance Vol 4 Peter Brian Ayscough, 1973. This product is not available separately; it is only sold as magnetic resonance from a chemist's point of view, covering g tensor theory, isotropic hyperfine structure, anisotropic hyperfine structure, and fine structure of spectrum and relaxation theory. Detailed explanations on quantitative determination of paramagnetic species are given to address readers' difficulties. Written as a physical chemistry graduate textbook, it is also

Korn,2012-12-06 Although not the only volume in this series in which lipids are discussed the present volume is devoted entirely to methods for the study of membrane lipids Even now when membrane proteins are properly receiving so much attention this emphasis on membrane lipids is appropriate Essentially all of the phospholipids and sterols of cells are in membranes Moreover although membrane proteins are certainly of utmost importance the more we learn about the functional properties of membrane proteins the more we appreciate the unique features of phospholipids without which biological membranes would be impossible The hydrophobic hydrophilic duality of phospholipids allows indeed requires their association in an aqueous environment into an essentially two dimensional membrane only molecularly thick in one dimension but relatively infinite in the other two a structure composed of small molecules not covalently linked and therefore infinitely mobile and variable but yet a structure with great stability and one largely impermeable to most biomolecules These membrane forming properties are shared by many amphipathic polar lipids phospholipids glycolipids and sphingolipids that differ significantly from each other in the nature of their polar head groups and their fatty acids These variations in structure allow a range of specific interactions among membrane lipids and between lipids and proteins and also provide for membranes of variable but controlled fluidity In this way phospholipids provide an appropriate milieu for functional membrane proteins and also significantly modulate their catalytic activities     Electron Spin Resonance ,1988-07 Specialist Periodical Reports provide systematic and detailed review coverage of progress in the major areas of chemical research Written by experts in their specialist fields the series creates a unique service for the active research chemist supplying regular critical in depth accounts of progress in particular areas of chemistry For over 80 years the Royal Society of Chemistry and its predecessor the Chemical Society have been publishing reports charting developments in chemistry which originally took the form of Annual Reports However by 1967 the whole spectrum of chemistry could no longer be contained within one volume and the series Specialist Periodical Reports was born The Annual Reports themselves still existed but were divided into two and subsequently three volumes covering Inorganic Organic and Physical Chemistry For more general coverage of the highlights in chemistry they remain a must Since that time the SPR series has altered according to the fluctuating degree of activity in various fields of chemistry Some titles have remained unchanged while others have altered their emphasis along with their titles some have been combined under a new name whereas others have had to be discontinued The current list of Specialist Periodical Reports can be seen on the inside flap of this volume
