In the Shadow of History Andrew Davidson, 2018-01-16 The spread of modernity throughout the non Western world has had transformative effects not only on governments and economies but on the lives of individuals as well The constraints and opportunities of modernization inevitably lead to the breakdown and supplanting of older social relations and livelihoods In this volume Andrew P Davidson examines the Nuba Mountain region of western Sudan to show how individuals and families struggle to maintain or expand their well being in the face of continuous uncertainty when control of their destinies is increasingly slipping out of the comforting confines of the village As in many third world regions changes in agriculture and market activity have occurred in the Nuba mountains in a far more compressed time frame than in Europe Davidson charts the social effects of the rationalization process by concentrating on the household as a mediating structure between the individual and the larger society In his analysis the livelihood strategies of households act as a microcosm for the unevenness of development that is characteristic of modernizing economies Davidson offers a comparative and historical examination of economic life in three villages in order to better understand the capacities and limitations that ultimately condition what people can and cannot do He shows how the older lineage system based on communalism kinship and age based hierarchy is being displaced by new forces of social organization and individual orientation which have eroded village cohesion and left the Nuba vulnerable to the Islamic dominated government in Khartoum and the ravages of the continuing Sudanese civil war In its combination of empirical analysis ethnographic fieldwork and theoretical inquiry In the Shadow of History reconceptualizes development in such a way that the dynamics of historical transformation are made clear This study like the classic anthropological tradition will be a valuable resource for anthropologists economists historians and Africa area specialists and commonly experience symptoms of traumatic stress as a result. Traditionally, human service and health care service organisations have struggled to support practitioners who experience primary and secondary trauma in either a preventative context or post exposure. Using contemporary trauma theory, this book provides a trauma informed support and supervision framework for supervisors and managers of practitioners that recognises the uniqueness of the practice field, the diversity of practitioners who undertake the work, and the diversity of contexts in which they work. It will be required reading for all human service and health professionals including social workers, psychologists, and nurses, as well as teachers, counsellors, and youth workers. Mind, 1892. Environmental Learning and Ethical Encounters. Ismar Borges de Lima, Ronda J. Green, 2017-06-13. Examining the intricacies, challenges, and lessons learned in a meaningful and rewarding tourism niche, this interdisciplinary book comprehensively examines the major potentials and controversies in the wildlife tourism industry. Pursuing an insightful, provocative, and hands-on approach, it primarily addresses two questions: Can we reconcile the needs of the wildlife tourism industry, biodiversity conservation, ecological learning, and animal ethics issues? What is the future of the wildlife tourism industry? Though primarily intended as a research text, it also offers a valuable resource for a broad readership which includes university and training students, researchers, scholars, tourism practitioners, and professionals, planners, and managers, as well as the staff of government agencies. Elements of International Law
