Clientelism, Capitalism, and Democracy Didi Kuo, 2018-08-16 Political parties in the United States and Britain used clientelism and patronage to govern throughout the nineteenth century By the twentieth century however parties in both countries shifted to programmatic competition This book argues that capitalists were critical to this shift Businesses developed new forms of corporate management and capitalist organization and found clientelism inimical to economic development Drawing on extensive archival research in the United States and Britain this book shows how national business organizations pushed parties to adopt programmatic reforms including administrative capacities and policy centered campaigns Parties then shifted from reliance on clientelism as a governing strategy in elections policy distribution and bureaucracy They built modern party organizations and techniques of interest mediation and accommodation This book provides a novel theory of capitalist interests against clientelism and argues for a more rigorous understanding of the relationship between capitalism and political development

From Open Secrets to Secret Voting Isabela Mares, 2015-06-17 The expansion of suffrage and the introduction of elections are momentous political changes that represent only the first steps in the process of democratization In the absence of institutions that protect the electoral autonomy of voters against a range of actors who seek to influence voting decisions political rights can be just hollow promises This book examines the adoption of electoral reforms that protected the autonomy of voters during elections and sought to minimize undue electoral influences over decisions made at the ballot box Empirically it focuses on the adoption of reforms protecting electoral secrecy in Imperial Germany during the period between 1870 and 1912 Empirically the book provides a micro historical analysis of the democratization of electoral practices by showing how changes in district level economic and political conditions contributed to the formation of an encompassing political coalition supporting the adoption of electoral reforms
