Encyclopedia of E-Business Development and Management in the Global Economy Lee, In, 2010-02-28 This research book is a repository for academicians researchers and industry practitioners to share and exchange their research ideas theories and practical experiences discuss challenges and opportunities and present tools and techniques in all aspects of e business development and management in the digital economy Provided by publisher Rewriting Partnerships Rachael W. Shah, 2020-05-15 Winner of the IARSLCE 2021 Publication of the Year Award and the Coalition for Community Writing Outstanding Book Award Community members are rarely tapped for their insights on engaged teaching and research but without these perspectives it is difficult to create ethical and effective practices Rewriting Partnerships calls for a radical reorientation to the knowledges of community partners Emphasizing the voices of community members themselves the adult literacy learners secondary students and youth activists who work with college students the book introduces Critical Community Based Epistemologies a deeply practical approach to knowledge construction that centers the perspectives of marginalized participants Drawing on interviews with over eighty community members Rewriting Partnerships features community knowledges in three common types of community engaged learning youth working with college students in a writing exchange program nonprofit staff who serve as clients for student projects and community members who work with graduate students Interviewees from each type of partnership offer practical strategies for creating more ethical collaborations including how programs are built how projects are introduced to partners and how graduate students are educated The book also explores three approaches to partnership design that create space for community voices at the structural level advisory boards participatory evaluation and community grading Immediately applicable to teachers researchers community partners and administrators involved in community engagement Rewriting Partnerships offers concrete strategies for creating more community responsive partnerships at the classroom level as well as at the level of program and research design But most provocatively the book challenges common assumptions about who can create knowledge about community based learning demonstrating that community partners have the potential to contribute significantly to community engagement scholarship and program decision making Intelligence and Technology Robert J. Sternberg, David Preiss, 2005 The contributors to this book examine and reflect upon the impact of various technologies on human abilities competencies and expertise Designing Globally Networked Learning Environments, 2008-01-01 Faculty administrators and others in higher education face growing pressures to position their institutions programs and courses in global markets and to prepare students for global work and citizenship These pressures raise urgent questions What might higher education look like in a globally networked world Do traditional industrial models of learning suffice or what new visions for learning are emerging What does it take to implement and maintain these visions To address these questions Designing Globally Networked Learning Environments brings together 25 educators from four continents who share their richly diverse visions for teaching and learning in a globally networked world What unites these visions is that they break with traditional models of repackaging traditional institutionally bounded courses for online delivery in global markets Instead these educators build robust partnerships to design globally networked learning environments that connect students with peers instructors and communities across traditional institutional national and other boundaries to facilitate the kind of cross boundary knowledge making that students as professionals and citizens will need to participate in the shaping of an emerging global order and to address the most pressing global problems we face The book offers these visions as opportunities for faculty program directors administrators instructional designers faculty development experts and others in higher education to work together to deliberate develop and shape inspiring visions for globally networked learning and to become active participants in the globalization of higher education Interface Fantasy Andre Nusselder, 2009-09-11 Behind our computer screens we are all cyborgs through fantasy we can understand our involvement in virtual worlds Cyberspace is first and foremost a mental space Therefore we need to take a psychological approach to understand our experiences in it In Interface Fantasy Andr Nusselder uses the core psychoanalytic notion of fantasy to examine our relationship to computers and digital technology Lacanian psychoanalysis considers fantasy to be an indispensable screen for our interaction with the outside world Nusselder argues that at the mental level computer screens and other human computer interfaces incorporate this function of fantasy they mediate the real and the virtual Interface

Fantasy illuminates our attachment to new media why we love our devices why we are fascinated by the images on their screens and how it is possible that virtual images can provide physical pleasure Nusselder puts such phenomena as avatars role playing cybersex computer psychotherapy and Internet addiction in the context of established psychoanalytic theory The virtual identities we assume in virtual worlds exemplified best by avatars consisting of both realistic and symbolic self representations illustrate the three orders that Lacan uses to analyze human reality the imaginary the symbolic and the real Nusselder analyzes our most intimate involvement with information technology the almost invisible affective aspects of technology that have the greatest impact on our lives Interface Fantasy lays the foundation for a new way of thinking that acknowledges the pivotal role of the screen in the current world of information And it gives an intelligible overview of basic Lacanian principles including fantasy language the virtual the real embodiment and enjoyment that shows their enormous relevance for understanding the current state of media technology

My Word! Susan D. Blum,2011-06-15 Classroom Cheats Turn to Computers Student Essays on Internet Offer Challenge to Teachers Faking the Grade Headlines such as these have been blaring the alarming news of an epidemic of plagiarism and cheating in American colleges more than 75 percent of students admit to having cheated 68 percent admit to cutting and pasting material from the Internet without citation Professors are reminded almost daily that many of today's college students operate under an entirely new set of assumptions about originality and ethics Practices that even a decade ago would have been regarded almost universally as academically dishonest are now commonplace Is this development an indication of dramatic shifts in education and the larger culture In a book that dismisses hand wringing in favor of a rich account of how students actually think and act Susan D Blum discovers two cultures that exist often uneasily side by side in the classroom Relying extensively on interviews conducted by students with students My Word presents the voices of today's young adults as they muse about their daily activities their challenges and the meanings of their college lives Outcomes based secondary education the steeply rising cost of college tuition and an economic climate in which higher education is valued for its effect on future earnings above all else These factors each have a role to play in explaining why students might pursue good grades by any means necessary These incentives have arisen in the same era as easily accessible ways to cheat electronically and with almost intolerable pressures that result in many students being diagnosed as clinically depressed during their transition from childhood to adulthood However Blum suggests the real problem of academic dishonesty arises primarily from a lack of communication between two distinct cultures within the university setting On one hand professors and administrators regard plagiarism as a serious academic crime an ethical transgression even a sin against an ethos of individualism and originality Students on the other hand revel in sharing in multiplicity in accomplishment at any cost Although this book is unlikely to reassure readers who hope that increasing rates of plagiarism can be reversed with strongly worded warnings on the first day of class My Word opens a dialogue between professors and their students that may lead to true mutual comprehension and serve as the basis for an alignment between student practices and their professors expectations
