Public Service Efficiency Rhys Andrews, Tom Entwistle, 2014-01-03 The current economic and political climate places ever greater pressure on public organizations to deliver services in a cost efficient way Focused on the costs of service delivery governments across the world have introduced a series of business like practices from performance management to public private partnership in the belief that these will increase the efficiency of their public services However both the debate about public service efficiency and the policies and practices introduced to advance it have developed without a coherent account of what efficiency means in this context and how it should be realized The predominance of a rather narrow definition of the term very often focused on the ratio of inputs to outputs has tended to polarise opinion either for or against efficiency agenda Yet public service efficiency more broadly conceived is an inescapable fact of the public manager's task environment indeed in the past the notion of efficiency was central to the emergence of the field of public administration This book will recover public service efficiency from the relatively narrow terms of recent debates by examining theories and evidence relating to technical allocative distributive and dynamic efficiencies In exploring the relationship between efficiency and democracy this book will move current debates in public administration forward by reflecting on the trade offs between the different dimensions of efficiency that public organizations confront

Strategies to Explore Ways to Improve Efficiency While Reducing Health Care Costs Calvin Tchatchoua, 2022-06-02 It was my pleasure to work with Calvin on his Doctoral Study at Walden University from 2014 to 2018 According to the Institute of Medicine of the National Academy of Science 2012 the United States is the only industrialized nation in the world that does not have a universal healthcare system Citizens in this country spend twice the amount of money on healthcare costs while the quality of services is only ranked 31st in the world by the World Health Organization By using systems theory Calvin identified those factors that are directly and inversely related to healthcare costs If these factors go up healthcare costs go up if they go down healthcare costs go down In Calvin's study he documents and discusses that 667 billion dollars is wasted because we don't manage these factors efficiently He then identifies factors that are inversely related to healthcare costs If they go up healthcare costs go down if they go down healthcare costs go up This represents a total of 391 billion To correct this problem we need to improve efficiencies to reduce costs and we need to reduce inefficiencies to lower costs with evidence based practices that work see Figure 3 on page 98 If only half of these issues were successfully worked on hospital costs could be reduced by 500 billion We would have enough funding to make certain that every person in the United States could have fully funded healthcare insurance Gossett et al 2019 This is a book that is well worth reading Kenneth D Gossett Ph D May 6 2022

Towards Administrative Efficiency in the Social Services Jacqueline Jew, 1982 Matching Resources to Needs in Community Care Bleddyn Davies, David Challis, 2018-08-09 First published in 1986 Matching Resources to Needs describes the PSSRU's community care approach and analyses the first of the community care projects a seminal set of experiments in the care of the elderly at high risk of institutional long term care The experiments create field structures which provide incentives to improve efficiency decentralised power over resources being balanced by enhanced accountability The first part explains the approach analyses the causes of inefficiency in British social care and reviews British and American evidence about the relationships between resources recipient characteristics and outcomes The approach is compared with some two dozen American experiments hitherto unknown in the UK It describes the design of the project and its evaluation The authors then examine the experimental results They show that cost and welfare effects are better and the costs of outcomes are lower for recipients of community care The third part of the book uses observational and other data to explore the relationships between structures assumptive worlds causal processes and outcomes and their costs It also analyses the performance of the core tasks of entrepreneurial case management for types of case The book concludes with a discussion of the broader implications of this approach to community care

Public expenditure Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Health Committee, 2012-01-24 The fact that there is another bill going through Parliament changing the management structure of the NHS means that there is a tendency for every comment about the NHS to be framed by the debate about the bill But the NHS is well used to management change In reality the key pressures which are building in the system arise from the fact that demand is continuing to grow at a time when health and social care budgets have stopped growing This development has been well signposted The implications were first highlighted by Sir David Nicholson in May 2009 and endorsed by both the previous government and the Coalition This report is a review of progress within the health and care system towards meeting the Nicholson challenge The NHS funding challenge can only be met by rethinking and redesigning the way health services are delivered now in order to deliver lasting long term benefits The Committee's December 2010 report HC 512 session 2010 11 ISBN 9780215555601 on health expenditure already expressed concerns then about the ability of the health service and local authorities to make the demanding efficiency gains required of them by the 2010 Spending Review while maintaining quality of care Both the NHS and local authorities are struggling to meet current targets in a sustainable long term manner that will maintain high quality efficient care in the future The need to provide high quality and efficient services that meet local needs within the funding available must be addressed as a matter of urgency

Productivity and Efficiency Challenges of Microcredit Program in Bangladesh Md. Mahmudul Alam , Rafiqul Islam Molla, 2013-01-01 There is no denying the fact that microcredit MC has been playing an important role in the movement for poverty alleviation But by the same breath it is also a hard fact that it has serious limitations in terms of its delivery system rules of repayment interest rate charges etc These limitations made it largely fail to realize its potential and expected goals A credible study on the productivity of MC was required to determine its actual interest profit paying capability In the absence of any established economic justification based on productivity this exorbitantly high interest rate is found morally untenable and has become the primary target of criticism for its minimal or marginal achievements As a result recently the government rightfully fixed 27% as the maximum interest rate chargeable for microcredit with effect from July 2011 However we need not undermine the importance and efforts of the microcredit movement both as an economic as well as a social institution for the betterment of the poor in the society We need not be selfish and miser to give the movement its due credit MC should not be summarily viewed as unuseful and unsuccessful It has been making some contributions to the betterment of the poor and it should be given the appreciation it deserves But like many other researchers we are troubled by the contradicting attitudes of the microcredit providers toward the borrowers In one hand they are concerned and committed to pull the poor out of poverty on the other hand they are so harsh in the timely payment of repayment installments putting a blind eye to the sufferings of these poor borrowers Therefore MCIs need to be more innovative to be able to serve and take care of the wellbeing of the critical group among the borrowers We are also puzzled to see that in spite of the exorbitantly high interest rate charges and all other limitations increasing number of these poor are borrowing credit from these MCIs This surgical study on the inside view of microcredit in Bangladesh using a rich data set developed through a survey of 555 sample borrowers from rural semi urban and urban areas of all 7 administrative divisions of Bangladesh is an effort to address these issues and find answers to these and other questions like its potentiality to become a growth tool in the third sector economy To our own best assessment this study made three major contributions to microcredit literature a application of economic profit counting method in economic productivity analysis b identification of the critically vulnerable group among the borrowers and c the revelation that microcredit is respected by the borrowers more as a social than economic institution To them microcredit has facilitated their social and political empowerments and safeguarded their social status An additional feature of this monograph is that it includes a chapter reflecting on the status of Islamic microcredit in the country We are thankful to the sample micro borrowers for their sincere cooperation and responses in the operation of this research We are equally thankful to the field investigators for their honest and untiring search for information We are thankful to Professor Dr Abu Bakr Rafique Ahmed Pro Vice Chancellor of International Islamic University Chittagong Bangladesh for his most valuable suggestion to include in the book a separate chapter on Islamic microfinance This chapter has certainly enhanced the focus of the monograph Lastly we are grateful to Professor Dr Anisuzzaman Chowdhury of University of Western Sydney Australia and Senior Economic Affairs Officer Department of Economic and Social Affairs United Nations New York for writing a thoughtful foreword to this work
