Sustainable Consumption Dale Southerton, Alistair Ulph, 2014 If global society is to address the many environmental and other sustainability challenges that confront us in the twenty first century such as climate change and water resources it will be necessary to make significant changes in our patterns of consumption production and distribution There is a growing realization that while changes in production and distribution are formidable the proposed solutions may not succeed unless it is possible to persuade individuals and households to change their patterns of consumption to make them more sustainable. However, there are significant differences in how key disciplines such as psychology, neuroscience, economics, politics, sociology, anthropology, and history conceptualise consumption, empirically test their theoretical predictions, and use these to inform policy makers across the private, public, and third sectors on how to make consumption more sustainable. This book contains chapters from world leading experts in these different disciplines that seek to explain the perspectives on sustainable consumption of their disciplines, suggest how these might be further enriched by taking on board some of the findings from other disciplines, and consider what this implies for new policies to address the key sustainability challenges outlined above. The book is dedicated to Professor Sir Partha Dasgupta, one of the world's leading economists who has worked across a range of topics including environmental and resource economics and development economics, and throughout his career has sought to incorporate into his economic thinking ideas from a range of other disciplines.

Ecological Networks Mercedes Pascual, Jennifer A. Dunne, 2006. Food webs are one of the most useful and challenging objects of study in ecology. These networks of predator-prey interactions conjured in Darwin's image of a tangled bank provide a paradigmatic example of complex adaptive systems. This book is based on a February 2004 Santa Fe Institute workshop. Its authors treat the ecology of predator-prey interactions, food web theory, structure, and dynamics. The book explores the boundaries of what is known of the relationship between structure and dynamics in ecological networks and will define directions for future developments in this field.

Business Strategies for Sustainability Helen Borland, Adam Lindgreen, Francois Maon, Véronique Ambrosini, Beatriz Palacios Florencio, Joelle Vanhamme, 2018-10-03. Business Strategies for Sustainability brings together important research contributions that demonstrate different approaches to business strategies for sustainability. Many corporate initiatives toward what firms perceive to be sustainability are simply efficiency drives or competitive moves falling far short of actual strategies for ecological sustainability. To suggest true ecological sustainability strategies, this new research anthology adopts an interdisciplinary or transdisciplinary approach to discern what business strategies might look like if they were underpinned by environmental and ecological science. The 23 chapters in this anthology reflect five main topic sections: a) delineating sustainability challenges and visions; b) contradiction, integration, and transformation of business and sustainability logics; c) innovating and developing strategic capabilities for sustainability; d) assessing and valuing sustainability; and e) toward multi-level engagement and collaboration.
