Weiss,Peter G. Kaufmann,2013-11-21 Cardiovascular disease continues to be the number one medical problem in the United States. Behavioral medicine was developed and shaped into the one source of morbidity and mortality in our country following the definition of the disease. Despite a 35% reduction since 1964, cardiovascular disease remains the leading cause of death in the United States. Behavioral medicine is the interdisciplinary field concerned with the development and integration of behavioral and biomedical science knowledge and techniques. The Framingham study among others has identified the application of this knowledge and these techniques to prevention, diagnosis, treatment, and rehabilitation. Identified three major risk factors implicated in the development of CHD: smoking, elevated serum cholesterol, and high blood pressure. At this concept of biobehavioral collaboration in 1986, given that these factors account for less than 50% of the variance associated with CHD, it is clear that more factors must be identified if further progress is to be made in disease prevention and simultaneously among others behavioral psychology control. Diabetes Dateline, 1979 The Clinical Documentation Improvement Specialist's Guide to ICD-10 Glenn Krauss,2011-03 Take charge of ICD 10 documentation requirements.
