Handbook of Environmental Psychology and Quality of Life Research Ghazlane Fleury-Bahi, Enric Pol, Oscar Navarro, 2016-08-12 This Handbook presents a broad overview of the current research carried out in environmental psychology which puts into perspective quality of life and relationships with living spaces and shows how this original analytical framework can be used to understand different environmental and societal issues Adopting an original approach this Handbook focuses on the links with other specialties in psychology especially social and health psychology together with other disciplines such as geography architecture sociology anthropology urbanism and engineering Faced with the problems of society which involve the quality of life of individuals and communities it is fundamental to consider the relationships an individual has with his different living spaces This issue of the links between quality of life and environment is becoming increasingly significant with at a local level problems resulting from different types of annoyances such as pollution and noise while at a global level there is the central question of climate change with its harmful consequences for humans and the planet How can the impact on well being of environmental nuisances and threats for example natural risks pollution and noise be reduced How can the quality of life within daily living spaces home cities work environments be improved Why is it important to understand the psychological issues of our relationship with the global environment climatic warming ecological behaviours This Handbook is intended not only for students of various disciplines geography architecture psychology town planning etc but also for social decision makers and players who will find in it both theoretical and methodological perspectives so that psychological and environmental dimensions can be better taken into account in their working practices

Advances in Environmental Psychology (Volume 5) Andrew Baum, Jerome E. Singer, 2020-09-10 The development of a field or an area of inquiry is often marked by changes in measurement techniques shifts in analytic emphasis and disputes over the best ways of doing research In many areas of psychology a number of issues have characterized methodological evolution of the discipline including questions regarding context and reductionism or laboratory versus field research For some of the newer areas in psychology such as environment or health psychology this is not an issue of either or Although there has been some debate about these trade offs it is generally regarded by people in this field that some combination of the two approaches is essential Depending on the question being studied this balance may change However the questions asked are less likely to inquire which way is better and concentrate on how both may be used This observation serves to illustrate the fact that different research endeavours have different methodological issues Originally published in 1985 this volume explores some of the issues characterizing work on health environment and behavior

Arias, 2024-11-07 Originally published in 1993 as part of the Ethnoscapes Current Challenges in the Environmental Social Sciences series reissued now with a new series introduction The Meaning and Use of Housing presents a re evaluation of the use and meaning of residential environments It integrates methodological and philosophical approaches to assist in the making of comparisons across issues concerns disciplines and countries and links theory research and practice It spans the globe reviewing studies of every conceivable form of housing In these studies a wide range of social science design management and policy perspectives are harnessed to enrich our understanding of the central place in people's life their homes

Psychology in India Revisited - Developments in the Discipline, Volume 3 Janak Pandey, 2004 The Survey of Psychology series presents critical reviews of and reflects the major changes in psychological research in India After a comprehensive introduction this the third volume in the series begins with a chapter that critically highlights the major contributions in the areas of attitudes social cognition and justice from a theoretical and cultural perspective The second chapter examines individualistic as well as traditional collectivist Indian values arguing that both can co exist This is followed by a chapter on the various dimensions of poverty the poor and deprivation Chapter Four reviews the major theoretical approaches to the subject and the next chapter presents the prevalent trends and shortcomings of the conceptual and methodological problems in the relatively new area of environmental psychology Chapter Six provides various pertinent issues related with motivation leadership and human performance within a conceptual framework and with theoretical perspectives The last chapter critically examines the changes and the general shift in the content of research as well as the strength and weaknesses of the discipline of psychology at the start of the new millennium

Society and Its Environment
Egbert Tellegen, Maarten Wolsink, 2014-01-02 First Published in 1998 People cannot live without changing nature They do so by breathing feeding and defecating by dressing and heating and by creating barriers against wind and water cold and heat These forms of human induced change of nature have been present since the dawn of mankind People are constantly confronted by a malignant nature against which they have to defend themselves and whose resources they have to use in order to survive However the relationship between man and nature has dramatically changed during the past centuries More than the word nature the term environment has become strongly associated with damage and decay caused by human beings Hence in practice environment is mostly associated with problems In this book the term environment does not describe different environments and the way they are changed by human activities in general but focuses on those human induced of it What are the causes of these changes when and where are these changes considered as environmental problems and how do people react to these changes are the main questions of this book One of the possible reactions to environmental problems is the efforts to solve them The ways in which individual citizens private enterprises public authorities environmental organizations and others try to solve environmental problems is a main topic of this book

Urbanization and Affordances that Promote Well-Being for (Urban) People and for a Healthy Biosphere Stephan Barthel, Marketta Kyttä, 2020-01-30 The world is urbanizing at an unprecedented rate It is estimated that in the near future urban landscapes for another ca 2 7 billion people will be built on planet Earth approximately converting land equivalent to the size of South Africa Such land conversion coupled with citizen densification increasing in equalities shifting diets and emerging technologies challenge human well being and pose ever increasing demand for resources generated by the Biosphere This Research Topic concentrates on the various ways urbanization can promote individual well being mental physical and social health as well as ecological health a healthy Biosphere What kind of affordances for human health promotion can urbanization include What kinds of affordances for a psychological connection with nature can urbanization include What kinds of nudges for pro environmental behavior and consumption decreasing detrimental consumption behaviors can be actively designed in urban settings The Research Topic at hand uses a transactional approach where an affordance can be understood as a non deterministic in situ precondition for a human activity enabled by relations between abilities of an individual with features of an environment We encourage a broad definition of the concept of affordances where the environment must not be restricted to the material biophysical environment alone but also could be combined with social immaterial features We see that the transactional approach of this Research Topic posits that meaning arises in relations between humans and their environment that it will be equally applicable to natural and designed environments and that it doesn't regard dichotomies like city contra nature or social contra ecological Hence this Research Topic is interested in if the transactional approach can be used as a conceptual tool not only for promotion of mental physical and social health in cities but simultaneously for unraveling relations at the micro scale in cities which can be used for solutions that also promote a healthy Biosphere
