Edward Heronallens Journal Of The Great War:

Edward Heron-Allen's Journal of the Great War Edward Heron-Allen, 2002 Edward Heron Allen was born in 1861 in London His father was George Allen He had two daughters Ianthe and Armored by his second wife Edith Pepler They lived in Selsey Sussex He was a member of the Sussex Volunteer Regiment and worked in the propaganda department of the War Office during World War I Includes journal entries from August 1914 to July 1919 The Local Historian ,2005 Arts & Humanities Citation Index ,1998 The Violin Family and Its Makers in the British Isles Brian W. Harvey, 1995 The contribution of the British Isles to the history of the violin family has been consistently under estimated For over 200 years England Wales Scotland and Ireland have produced many fine makers and an abundance of quality instruments and bows now sought after around the world In addition London has for over 100 years been an important centre for restoring dealing in collecting and exhibiting the finest products of Stradivari Guarneri and other Italian masters an important source of inspiration Professor Harvey explains in detail the history of violin making in Britain from one of the earliest extant English instruments made of iron by John Bunyan in about 1647 to the extensive British craft industry of today including within his book a comprehensive directory of violin and bow makers of the British Isles with auction prices The book includes numerous high quality colour and monochrome illustrations including samples of the work of the major craftsmen involved Throughout most of this history the scene has been dominated by the Hill family which for over 250 years has produced instruments and bows of the highest quality and their influence is fully assessed The book is also a social and economic history of stringed instruments showing how in England in particular the violin was slow to win acceptance by association with gypsies and the devil and how the cello became the instrument favoured by royalty and the aristocracy The demand for instruments at any particular time is gauged against musical activity in the country The book is the first in any language to deal with the vast and fascinating subject in this way and in such depth As such it will be welcomed by makers dealers internationally auction houses collectors teachers players and students of stringed instruments A Journal of the Great War Volume 1 Charles Gates Dawes, 2013-09 This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text Purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book without typos from the publisher Not indexed Not illustrated 1921 edition Excerpt PREFACE We of this generation are too near the Great War to write its history Time alone can give perspective and then only to the historian and his readers It alone can assign to past events their relative importance This generation in the United States is living and has lived amidst such a succession of great events that it has ceased to be greatly impressed by them Among our people the war is largely forgotten or remembered because of some personal consequence or some prospective personal consequence Yet an elemental convulsion of humanity has occurred so profound in its effects upon life on the earth that it will be studied and described for thousands of years Of all ages and epochs this is the greatest and the one to which all those of the future will hark back this in which though we played our great part we yet live heedlessly and with little thought of the future The war itself was conducted on so vast a scale involved so many nations and armies covered such an extent of territory and included such a number of campaigns that only the trained mind of the future military student will follow it in its details But out of the study of the war in its larger aspects already commencing in Europe there is arising the first of many great generalizations to wit the stupendous and unnecessary loss of life and waste of wealth man power and material due to the selfish resistance among the Allies to an earlier central control of military and supply operation When in March 1918 Foch who in my judgment will be regarded in history as the greatest of all soldiers was finally conceded the central control of Allied army movement it was as a result of a crushing defeat of the British which wiped out their al
