social strata became involved in acquiring knowledge and skills during the Tokugawa period. It offers an overview of the communication media and tools that teachers, booksellers, and authors elaborated to make such knowledge more accessible to a large audience. Schools, public lectures, private academies, or hand copied or printed manuals devoted to a great variety of topics from epistolary etiquette or personal ethics to calculation, divination, or painting are here invoked to illustrate the vitality of Tokugawa Japan's knowledge market and to show how popular learning relied on three types of activities: listening, copying, and reading. With contributions by W. J. Boot, Matthias Hayek, Annick Horiuchi, Michael Kinski, Koizumi Yoshinaga, Peter Kornicki, Machi Senjirō, Christophe Marquet, Markus R. Ttermann, Tsujimoto Masashi, and Wakao Masaki, 'This Culture of Ours' Peter K. Bol, 1994-08-01. This book traces the shared culture of the Chinese elite from the seventh to the twelfth centuries. The early Tang definition of This Culture of Ours combined literary and scholarly traditions from the previous five centuries. The late Sung Neo Confucian movement challenged that definition. The author argues that the Tang-Sung transition is best understood as a transition from a literary view of culture in which literary accomplishment and mastery of traditional forms were regarded as essential to the ethical orientation of Neo Confucianism in which the cultivation of one's innate moral ability was regarded as the goal of learning. The author shows that this transformation paralleled the collapse of the Tang order and the restoration of a centralized empire under the Sung, underscoring the connection between elite formation and political institutions.
