Governance Amanda Kennedy, Jonathan Liljeblad, 2016-04-28 Sustainability and food production represent a major challenge to society with both consumption and supply sides posing practical and ethical dilemmas This book shows that food governance issues can occur in many ways and at many points along the food chain The risks and impacts particularly with the increasing globalisation of food systems are often distributed in unequal ways It is the role of law to form the pivot around which these issues are addressed in society in the form of food governance mechanisms The chapters in this book address a range of issues in food governance revolving around questions of justice fairness equality and human rights They identify different issues regarding inequality in access and control over food governance Some address generic governance and institutional issues across a range of international contexts while others present case studies including from Argentina China India Indonesia Thailand UK and West Africa The book offers directions for reform of the law and legal institutions to mitigate the dangers of inequality and promote greater fairness in food governance Statistical Training Programs, Sept.

Films, 1954 Open Source Agriculture Chris Giotitsas, 2019-11-14 This Palgrave Pivot employs the concept of open source agriculture as a new social movement which not only advocates a specific agenda but also creates technological products under a unique technology development model The book brings together social movement and technology theory to examine it through two in depth case studies of open source agricultural communities This allows for the tracing of values and interests coded within the technological artefacts the communities produce as well as their development processes Critical theory of technology is further applied to examine the broader political economy of the development model Agricultural Survey Methods Roberto Benedetti, Federica Piersimoni, Marco Bee, Giuseppe Espa, 2010-03-18 Due to the widespread use of surveys in agricultural resources estimation there is a broad and recognizable interest in methods and techniques to collect and process agricultural data This book brings together the knowledge of academics and experts to increase the dissemination of the latest developments in agricultural statistics Conducting a census setting up frames and registers and using administrative data for statistical purposes are covered and issues arising from sample design and estimation use of remote sensing management of data quality and dissemination and analysis of survey data are explored Key features Brings together high quality research on agricultural statistics from experts in this field Provides a thorough and much needed overview of developments within agricultural statistics Contains summaries for each chapter providing a valuable reference framework for those new to the field Based upon a selection of key methodological papers presented at the ICAS conference series updated and expanded to address current issues Covers traditional statistical methodologies including sampling and weighting This book provides a much needed guide to conducting surveys of land use and to the latest developments in agricultural statistics Statisticians interested in agricultural statistics agricultural statisticians in national statistics offices and statisticians and researchers using survey methodology will benefit from this book Rethinking Food Systems Nadia C.S. Lambek, Priscilla Claeys, Adrienna Wong, Lea Brilmayer, 2014-01-10 Taking as a starting point that hunger results from social exclusion and distributional inequities and that lasting sustainable and just solutions are to be found in changing the structures that underlie our food systems this book examines how law shapes global food systems and their ongoing transformations Using detailed case studies historical mapping and legal analysis the contributors show how various actors farmers civil society groups government officials international bodies use or could use different legal tools legislative jurisprudential norm setting on various scales local national regional global to achieve structural changes in food systems Section 1 Institutionalizing New Approaches explores the possibility of institutionalizing social change through two alternative visions for change the right to food and food sovereignty Individual chapters discuss V a Campesina s struggle to implement food sovereignty principles into international trade law and present case studies on adopting food sovereignty legislation in Nicaragua and right to food legislation in Uganda The chapters in Section 2 Regulating for Change explore the extent to which the regulation of actors can or cannot change incentives and produce transformative results in food systems They look at the role of the state in regulating its own actions as well as the actions of third parties and analyze various means of regulating land grabs The final section Governing for Better Food Systems discusses the fragmentation of international law and the impacts of this fragmentation on the realization of human rights These chapters trace the underpinnings of the current global food system explore the challenges of competing regimes of intellectual property farmers rights and human rights and suggest new modes of governance for global and local food systems The stakes for building better food systems are high Our current path leaves many behind destroying the environment and entrenching inequality and systemic poverty While it is commonly understood that legal structures are at the heart of food systems the legal academy has yet to make a significant contribution to recent discussions on improving food systems this book aims to fill that gap Statistics of Land-grant Colleges and Universities United States. The greatest challenges of the twenty first century stem from the fact that we are now living in a new epoch the Anthropocene The human footprint on the planet can no longer be denied One of the greatest and most essential human innovations agriculture is being increasingly recognised as a leading contributor to climate change According to global governance bodies the world will need to feed a predicted nine billion people by 2050 However in this Anthropocene we must address the environmental inequalities in how these people will be fed This book explores our current societal struggles to transition towards more sustainable agrifood systems It suggests that debates around sustainable agriculture must be social as well as technical exploring the growth of social movements campaigning for more democratic food systems However as each chapter demonstrates both the problems and the solutions in sustainable agriculture are highly contested Using the term agrifood to capture the nexus between research governance and the environment knowledge environment governance this book provides an in depth and wide ranging account of current research around agricultural production and food consumption The book introduces the Anthropocene along with the fundamental question that it poses about human nature interactions It outlines the core concerns related to agriculture and food and the debates around the need for agrifood system transitions Each chapter investigates controversies in the field through case studies These contributions offer a call for sociologists of agriculture and food to engage with the controversies unfolding in the Anthropocene Bulletin ,1951
