How Folklore Shaped Modern Art Wes Hill, 2015-11-19 Since the 1990s artists and art writers around the world have increasingly undermined the essentialism associated with notions of critical practice We can see this manifesting in the renewed relevance of what were previously considered outsider art practices the emphasis on first person accounts of identity over critical theory and the proliferation of exhibitions that refuse to distinguish between art and the productions of culture more generally How Folklore Shaped Modern Art A Post Critical History of Aesthetics underscores how the cultural traditions belief systems and performed exchanges that were once integral to the folklore discipline are now central to contemporary art's post critical turn This shift is considered here as less a direct confrontation of critical procedures than a symptom of art's inclusive ideals overturning the historical separation of fine art from those uncritical forms located in material and commercial culture In a global context aesthetics is now just one of numerous traditions informing our encounters with visual culture today symptomatic of the pull towards an impossibly pluralistic image of art that reflects the irreducible conditions of identity

Hanan Toukan, 2021-06-08 Over the last three decades a new generation of conceptual artists has come to the fore in the Arab Middle East As wars peace treaties sanctions and large scale economic developments have reshaped the region this cohort of cultural producers has also found themselves at the center of intergenerational debates on the role of art in society Central to these cultural debates is a steady stream of support from North American and European funding organizations resources that only increased with the start of the Arab uprisings in the early 2010s The Politics of Art offers an unprecedented look into the entanglement of art and international politics in Beirut Ramallah and Amman to understand the aesthetics of material production within liberal economies Hanan Toukan outlines the political and social functions of transnationally connected and internationally funded arts organizations and initiatives and reveals how the production of art within global frameworks can contribute to hegemonic structures even as it is critiquing them or how it can be counterhegemonic even when it first appears not to be In so doing Toukan proposes not only a new way of reading contemporary art practices as they situate themselves globally but also a new way of reading the domestic politics of the region from the vantage point of art
