The need to understand learning and teaching from multiple cultural perspectives has become critically important in educating the next generation of college students. Education experts from around the world share their perspectives on college and university teaching, illuminating international differences and similarities. The chapters are organized around a model developed by James Groccia which focuses on seven interrelated variables including teacher, learner, learning process, learning context, course content, instructional processes, and learning outcomes. Using this logical model as the organizational structure, the book provides a guide for systemic thinking about what actions one should take or suggest others take when planning activities to improve teaching and learning, curriculum development, and assessment.

This volume is a signal contribution to the study of children's literature and its relation to racism and social conditions.
