Handbook of Psychological Approaches with Violent Offenders Vincent B. Van Hasselt, Michel Hersen, 2013-11-11

The past quarter century has witnessed a dramatic upsurge of violent crime in the United States and abroad. In this country, the rise in violent criminal activity has been consistently documented in such published accounts as the Uniform Crime Reports and the Statistical Handbook on Violence in America published by the FBI and the Violence Research Group, respectively. Further, social scientists, particularly those working in the fields of sociology and psychology, have provided a convergence of findings attesting to the magnitude of one of today's most significant social problems: domestic violence, e.g., spouse, child, and elder abuse. Such efforts have served as the impetus for heightened clinical and investigative activity in the area of violent behavior. Indeed, a wide range of mental health experts, such as psychologists, psychiatrists, social workers, counselors, and rehabilitation specialists, have endeavored to focus on strategies and issues in research and treatment for violent individuals and their victims. The purpose of this book is to provide a comprehensive and timely examination of current psychological approaches with violent criminal offenders. Despite the fact that we continue to have much to learn about perpetrators of violent acts, in recent years an increasingly large body of empirical data has been adduced about this years' issue. However, these data generally have appeared in disparate journals and books. That being the case, it is our belief that such a handbook now is warranted.

Motivation and Child Maltreatment David J. Hansen, 2000-01-01

In this volume, the concept of motivation is used to shed light on a range of complex issues surrounding the maltreatment of children. Cathy Spatz Widom investigates the role of motivation in the intergenerational transmission of violence, where victimized children themselves become perpetrators of violence as adults. Joel S. Milner looks at the way abusive parents process social information related to children. The biological, psychological, and social contextual regulatory processes in maltreated children are considered by Dante Cicchetti and Sheree L. Toth. Deborah Daro discusses the current status of efforts to eliminate maltreatment of children and offers an alternative model for approaching the concept and practice of prevention. John R. Lutzker addresses the challenges of and procedures for applied research on the treatment of abusive parents In his concluding essay Ross A Thompson highlights the important themes focusing on child maltreatment that underlie this volume Handbook of Child Psychopathology Thomas H.
