Gourmet Atlas The History Origin And Migration Of Foods Of The World:

The Gourmet Atlas Susie Ward, Claire Clifton, Jenny Stacey, 1997 Revealing the origins and history of food and drink around the world this reference guide contains maps showing the trade routes that marked the exchange of ingredients among cultures There are authentic recipes and numerous A to Z listings of herbs and spices fruits nuts berries and pasta

Food Safety and the WTO: The Interplay of Culture, Science and Technology Marsha Echols, 2001-11-16 Today's international trade regime explicitly rejects cultural perceptions of what is safe to eat overturning millennia of tradition The World Trade Organization WTO Agreement on the Application of Sanitary and Phytosanitary Measures SPS enshrines science as the arbiter in resolving disputes involving this vital human need This mandate however is under attack from many quarters Critics cite environmental and ethical concerns unpredictably changing technology taste food preferences local culture adequacy of governmental implementation of WTO standards and the reliability of scientific opinion A basic conflict has crystallized food as culture versus food as commerce The WTO SPS approach is increasingly challenged for its balance in favor of economic considerations and for its visible undermining of unique cultural identities This important book explores the relationship between the SPS Agreement food traditions science and technology It deliberately confronts those trade experts who refuse to allow other social sciences to influence their economics based trade theory The author ably investigates the local perception of food and food safety from the anthropological and historical points of view the evolution of food production technologies and the medicinal proscriptive taboo and security aspects of food that continue to prevail in nearly all cultures today She succeeds in demonstrating that no matter how strong the faith in science and economics it is unwise to flagrantly dismiss the deeply rooted beliefs of billions of people a huge majority of the world's population The Beef Hormones case the remaining sovereignty related to food safety measures the increasing significance of appropriate levels of protection and the precautionary principle the redefinition of food hazard to include production processes as well as food itself genetically modified seeds and food products the concept of risk in the science based context of the Codex Alimentarius these are among the issues and topics covered in depth The author concludes that although quick legal resolutions of trade disputes about what people should or should not eat might provide a win for open trade support for the entire structure and rationale of the WTO is undermined unless at the least some flexibility of interpretation is introduced into the WTO Dispute Resolution System in order to recognize the weight and validity of public opinion Food safety is arguably the most important issue affecting international commerce today urgently demanding enlightened discussion and action based on global consensus This well researched and thoughtful contribution offers significant clarification and perspective to policymakers lawyers academics and others engaged in this critical human drama in progress on the world stage Science and Technology Resources James E. Why We Eat What We Eat Raymond A. Sokolov, 1993 When Christopher Columbus stumbled upon America in 1492 the Italians had no pasta with tomato sauce the Chinese had no spicy Szechuan cuisine and the Aztecs in Mexico were eating tacos filled with live insects instead of beef In this lively always surprising history of the world through a gourmet s eyes Raymond Sokolov explains how all of us Europeans Americans Africans and Asians came to eat what we eat today He journeys with the reader to far flung ports of the former Spanish empire in search of the points where the menus of two hemispheres merged In the process he shows that our idea of traditional cuisine in contrast to today s inventive new dishes ignores the food revolution that has been going on for the last 500 years
