End Of Life Decision Making:

Decision Making near the End of Life James L. Werth Jr., Dean Blevins, 2008-10-20 Decision Making near the End of Life provides a comprehensive overview of the recent developments that have impacted decision making processes within the field of end of life care The most current developments in all aspects of major underlying issues such as public attitudes the impact of media bioethics and legal precedent provide the background information for the text The authors examine various aspects of end of life choices and decision making including communication between and among family medical personnel the dying person advance directives and the emergence of hospice and palliative care institutions The book also explores a variety of psychosocial considerations that arise in decision making including religion spirituality family caregiving disenfranchised and diverse groups and the psychological and psychiatric problems that can impact both the dying person and loved ones Case studies and first person stories about decision making written by professionals in the field bring a uniquely personal touch to this valuable text

End-of-life Decision Making Robert H. Blank, 2005 Experts analyze death related issues and policies in twelve countries discussing health care costs advance directives pain management cultural social and religious factors and other topics

Cultural Issues in End-of-Life Decision Making Kathryn L. Braun, James H. Pietsch, Patricia L. Blanchette, 2000 Questions that face dying individuals their families and the professionals that help them at the end of their lives are explored in this volume The contributors help the reader to come to terms with issues of mortality complicated by the diversity of cultures within society

Intimations of Mortality Barbara A. Reich, 2022-03-17 In Intimations of Mortality Barbara Reich offers an empirically based critique of the failures of end of life communication and decision making in the United States Using England and Canada as occasional foils Reich explores why U S physicians patients and families struggle to have the conversations necessary to provide seriously ill and dying patients with medical care consistent with their preferences Reich also shows how a number of different factors including payment mechanisms liability fears cultural phenomena communication avoidance death denial and clinical uncertainty impact physician patient communication and medical decision making leave patients and families without the tools they need to make informed choices and instead leave the default practices in place Ultimately this groundbreaking analysis unveils the interconnectedness of the many obstacles to better communication and decision making in end of life communications and offers much needed suggestions for improvement

The Right to Die Alan Meisel, Kathy L. Cerminara, Thaddeus M. Pope, 2004-01-01 The Right to Die Third Edition analyzes the statutory and case law

Critically Impaired Infants and End of Life Decision Making Neera Bhatia, 2015-06-05 Decisions to withdraw or withhold life sustaining treatment are contentious and offer difficult moral dilemmas to both medical practitioners and the judiciary This issue is exacerbated when the patient is unable to exercise autonomy and is entirely dependent on the will of others This book focuses on the legal and ethical complexities surrounding end of life decisions for critically impaired and extremely premature infants Neera Bhatia explores decisions to withdraw or withhold life sustaining treatment from critically impaired infants and addresses the controversial question which lives are too expensive to treat Bringing to bear such key issues as clinical guidance public awareness and resource allocation the book provides a rational approach to end of life decision making where decisions to withdraw or withhold treatment may trump other competing interests The book will be of great interest and use to scholars and students of bioethics medical law and medical practitioners End-of-life Decisions Maurice Steinberg, Stuart J.

Youngner, 1998 In recent years the lens of the media has narrowed issues of euthanasia and assisted suicide to a drama involving two players Dr Kevorkian and the law This has left suffering patients and their families unrecognized and isolated when facing the most painful life decision Here at last is a book that addresses the role of psychiatry in dealing with a major controversial topic in American medicine today treatment decisions at the end of life End of Life Decisions A Psychosocial Perspective acknowledges and explores the role psychiatrists can play as advisers to the terminally ill and their loved ones It describes the wide range of emotional and psychiatric issues faced by the patient family and physician that affect choices patients make to limit treatment or seek physician assistance in dying A distinguished group of contributors all of whom have extensive experience dealing with end of life issues in clinical practice address topics that may not have been considered previously From dealing with issues of terminal illnesses in children to making difficult treatment decisions for patients with AIDS from judging the competency of clinically depressed patients for making sound decisions to understanding the influence of family dynamics economic forces and language differences on doctor patient communication the book uses specific case studies and data to explore the role of professionals in end of life decisions End of Life Decisions strikes a careful balance between the need for patient autonomy and the challenge to make well formulated treatment decisions This book will heighten modern medicine's and society's consciousness concerning the difficult challenges faced by patients and their families when making end of life decisions Textbook of Palliative Nursing Department of Nursing Education and

Making End-Of-Life Decisions Tom Wallace, 2017-04-11 Who wants to think about dying Most of us quickly answer that question Not me Author Tom Wallace however has been contemplating how we die since the death of his first wife and his diagnosis with vascular dementia For the past four years he has been living day to day and grappling with the issues he writes about in this book Making End of Life Decisions is the output of Tom's journey the steps he's taken to remain in control of his life to the very end Through the book you'll understand how to create a good death which allows people to remain autonomous over how their life ends as well as how to avoid a bad death in which others control when and how you die With the help of Wallace and Making End of Life Decisions you can learn how to make your wishes clear to loved ones caretakers and medical practitioners How You make your wishes clear through conversations either verbally or in writing His guide will teach you how to decide what a good death means to you start that initial conversation with your loved ones medical team and others choose which kinds of end of life care you prefer and prepare the documents that will help ensure that you get the care you desire Never has the phrase Plan Ahead been more appropriate or more helpful

Oxford Textbook of Palliative Nursing Betty R. Ferrell, Nessa Coyle, Judith A. Paice, 2015 The Oxford

Textbook of Palliative Nursing is the definitive text on nursing care of the seriously ill and dying. It is a comprehensive work addressing all aspects of palliative care including physical, psychological, social and spiritual needs. The text is written by leaders in the field and includes an impressive section on international palliative care. Each chapter includes case examples and a strong evidence base to support the highest quality of care. The book is rich with tables and figures offering practical resources for clinical practice across all settings of care and encompassing all ages from pediatrics to geriatrics. Palliative care for older people Lieve Van den Block, Gwenda Albers, Sandra Martins Pereira, Bregje Onwuteaka-Philipsen, Roeline Pasman, Luc Deliens, 2015-05-07. Current projections indicate that by 2050 the number of people aged over 80 years old will rise to 395 million and that by this date 25-30% of people over the age of 85 will show some degree of cognitive decline.

Palliative care for older people: A public health perspective provides a comprehensive account of the current state of palliative care for older people worldwide and illustrates the range of concomitant issues that as the global population ages will ever more acutely shape the decisions of policy makers and care givers. The book begins by outlining the range of policies towards palliative care for older people that are found worldwide. It follows this by examining an array of socio-cultural issues and palliative care initiatives from the care implications of health trajectories of older people to the spiritual requirements of palliative care patients and from the need to encourage compassion towards end of life care within communities to the development of care pathways for older people.

Palliative care for older people: A public health perspective is a valuable resource for professionals and academics in a range of healthcare and public health fields to understand the current state of policy work from around the world. The book also highlights the social-cultural considerations that influence the difficult decisions that those involved in palliative care face: not least patients themselves and offers examples of good practice and recommendations to inspire support and direct healthcare policy and decision making at organisational, regional, national and international levels.

Encyclopedia of Medical Decision Making Michael W. Kattan, 2009-08-15. Decision making is a critical element in the field of medicine that can lead to life or death outcomes yet it is an element fraught with complex and conflicting variables: diagnostic and therapeutic uncertainties, patient preferences and values and costs. Together decisions made by physicians, patients, insurers and policymakers determine the quality of health care quality that depends inherently on counterbalancing risks and benefits and competing objectives such as maximizing life expectancy versus optimizing quality of life or quality of care versus economic realities. Broadly speaking concepts in medical decision making (MDM) may be divided into two major categories: prescriptive and descriptive. Work in the area of prescriptive MDM investigates how medical decisions should be done using complicated analyses and algorithms to determine cost effectiveness measures, prediction methods and so on. In contrast descriptive MDM studies how decisions actually are made involving human judgment, biases, social influences, patient factors and so on. The Encyclopedia of Medical Decision Making gives a gentle introduction to both categories revealing how medical and healthcare decisions are actually made and constrained and how physician healthcare management and patient decision making can be improved to optimize health outcomes
