Papermaking in Britain 1488-1988 Richard Leslie Hills, 2015-11-19 This short history tells the story of five hundred years of papermaking against the general background of the coming of paper and printing in Britain through the major developments of the Industrial Revolution up to the technological advances which have made possible the enormous high speed paper machines of the present day Enterprise and History D. C. Coleman, Donald Cuthbert Coleman, Peter Mathias, 2006-11-02 This collection of original essays written by friends colleagues and former students is a tribute to Charles Wilson Running through the essays is the theme of enterprise in history and especially in the two fields in which Charles Wilson has been pre eminent business history and the economic relations of England and the Netherlands This volume presents a comprehensive set of studies of diverse examples of the forms consequences and interpretations of economic enterprise in history English Orchards Gerry Barnes, Tom Williamson, 2022-07-20 Old orchards have an irresistible appeal Their ancient trees and obscure fruit varieties seem to provide a direct link with the lost rural world of our ancestors a time when the pace of life was slower and people had a strong and intimate connection with their local environment They are also of critical importance for sustaining biodiversity providing habitats in particular for a range of rare invertebrates Not surprisingly orchards and the fruit they contain have attracted an increasing amount of attention over the last few decades from both enthusiastic bands of amateurs and official conservation bodies But much of what has been written about them is historically vague romanticized and nostalgic Orchards have become a symbol of unspoiled picturesque rural England This book attempts for the first time to provide a comprehensive review of the development of orchards in England from the Middle Ages to the present day It describes the various different kinds of orchard and explains how and when they appeared in the landscape and why they have disappeared at a catastrophic rate over the last six decades Chapters discuss the contrasting histories of fruit growing in different regions of England the complex story of traditional fruit varieties and the role of orchards in wildlife conservation In addition a chapter on researching orchards provides a practical guide for those wishing to investigate the history and archaeology of particular examples History of Oxford University Press: Volume II Ian Anders Gadd, Simon Eliot, William Roger Louis, Keith Robbins, 2013-11 The history of Oxford University Press spans five centuries of printing and publishing Taking the story from 1780 to 1896 this volume covers developments in publishing technology the output of the University Press its relationship with the University and city of Oxford and its growing place in the wider book trade The Passage of Arms Richard Bradley, 1990-09-28 A new paperback edition of Richard Bradley's study of the fine objects that were so often buried in hoards or deposited in watery locations such as rivers or bogs Richard Bradley brings his views up to date and answers some of his critics in a new Productivity and Performance in the Paper Industry Gary Bryan Magee, 1997-03-27 This pioneering 1997 introduction study examines the economic development of the British paper industry between 1860 and 1914 an era in which it is often claimed that the origins of Britain's relative economic decline are first witnessed For paper making this was also a period in which an array of important new forces including inter alia the development of new raw materials and the move to ever larger scales of production came on the scene Gary Bryan Magee looks at the effect of these changes and assesses how effectively the industry coped with the new pressures drawing upon an extensive range of quantitative and archival sources from Britain America and other countries Along the way Dr Magee addresses issues central to the understanding of industrial competitiveness such as technological change entrepreneurship productivity trade policy and industrial relations Makina Deep History Clive Gamble, 2021-03-25 One afternoon in late April 1859 two geologically minded businessmen John Evans and Joseph Prestwich found and photographed the proof for great human antiquity Their evidence small hand held stone tools found in the gravel guarries of the Somme among the bones of ancient animals shattered the timescale of Genesis and kicked open the door for a time revolution in human history In the space of a calendar year and at a furious pace the relationship between humans and time was forever changed This interpretation of deep human history was shaped by the optimistic decade of the 1850s the Victorian Heyday in the age of equipoise Proving great human antiquity depended on matching the principles of geology with the personal values of scientific zeal and perseverance qualities which time revolutionaries such as Evans and Prestwich had in abundance Their revolution was driven by a small group of weekend scientists rather than some great purpose and it proved effective because of its bonds of friendship stiffened by scientific curiosity and business acumen Clive Gamble explores the personalities of these time revolutionaries and their scientific co collaborators and adjudicators Darwin Falconer Lyell Huxley and the French antiquary Boucher de Perthes as well as their sisters wives and nieces Grace McCall Civil Prestwich and Fanny Evans As with all scientific discoveries getting there was often circuitous and messy the revolutionaries changed their minds and disagreed with those who should have been allies Gamble's chronological narrative reveals each step from discovery to presentation reception consolidation and widespread acceptance and considers the impact of their work on the scientific advances of the next 160 years and on our fascination Thicker Than Water Leonore Davidoff, 2012 A pioneering new study of nineteenth with the shaping power of time century kinship and family relations focusing on the British middle class and highlighting both the similarities and the differences in relations between brothers and sisters in the past and in the present Studies on the History of Papermaking in Britain Alfred H. Shorter, 2024-08-07 The late A H Shorter is widely acknowledged for his pioneering work on the history of the British paper making industry and his books continue to provide the basis for further research The present volume brings together all his many articles hitherto scattered across a variety of specialist publications and often virtually inaccessible In these studies Dr Shorter tackled the subject with a broader scope than was possible in his books in particular they cover the period after 1800 tracing the changing geographical pattern of the industry They also contain a wealth of detailed information on papermaking across Britain notably in the counties of southwest England that is impossible to find elsewhere and is now made accessible through the comprehensive indexes to the volume Le regrett A H Shorter est largement reconnu pour ses travaux originaux sur l'histoire de l'industrie papeti re britannique et ses ouvrages continuent d tre la base de toutes recherches suppl mentaires.
