Energy Services For The Worlds Poor:

Energy Services for the World's Poor Penelope J. Brook, Suzanne Smith, 2000      Energy Poverty Antoine Halff, Benjamin K. Sovacool, Jon Rozhon, 2014-11-27 This edited volume looks at energy poverty an issue whose pivotal role in the fight for human development is only now being recognised by policymakers Nearly one quarter of humanity still lacks access to electricity Close to one third rely on traditional fuels like firewood and cow dung for cooking at great cost to their health and welfare While most prevalent in parts of Africa and Asia energy poverty is a global problem which concerns us all This book which brings together economists policymakers entrepreneurs and other practitioners from all over the world is dedicated to a single goal finding a solution to this haunting problem It is part history part economics part political analysis part business case review and part field handbook Part One focuses on defining and measuring the problem and benchmarking progress in solving it an obvious prerequisite to any successful energy access policy Part Two reviews past and current energy access programs with an eye towards finding out what worked and what didn't and what can be replicated elsewhere These case reviews are told as seen on the ground China's experience by top Chinese officials and Africa's by African regulators and scholars Based in part on those cases the book's last more forward looking section aims to present practitioners with a tool kit a menu of options to speed up their efforts The energy access agenda is gaining traction at a time of rising concerns about climate change and resource constraints This book shows that bringing modern energy to those who lack it not just a moral imperative but will likely benefit the world as a whole without harming the environment or unduly stretching finite resources

Assessing the Impact of Transport and Energy Infrastructure on Poverty Reduction Cynthia C. Cook, Asian Development Bank, 2005 The objectives of the RETA regional technical assistance project a study based on a literature and project review and on field research in three Asian countries People's Republic of China Thailand and India were to enhance current understanding of how transport and energy infrastructure contribute to poverty reduction to fill knowledge gaps and to identify lessons learned and good practices P 1      Global Energy Assessment Thomas B. Johansson, Anand Prabhakar Patwardhan, Nebojša Nakićenović, Luis Gomez-Echeverri, 2012-08-27 Independent scientifically based integrated policy relevant analysis of current and emerging energy issues for specialists and policymakers in academia industry government

Making Public in a Privatized World David A. McDonald, 2016-02-15 How do we provide effective public services in a deeply neoliberal world In the wake of the widespread failure of privatisation efforts societies in the global south are increasingly seeking progressive ways of recreating the public sector With contributors ranging from cutting edge scholars to activists working in health water and energy provision and with case studies covering a broad spectrum of localities and actors Making Public in a Privatized World uncovers the radically different ways in which public services are being reshaped from the grassroots up From communities holding the state accountable for public health in rural Guatemala to waste pickers in India and decentralized solar electricity initiatives in Africa the essays in this collection offer probing insights into the complex ways in which people are building genuine alternatives to privatization while also illustrating the challenges which communities face in creating public services which are not subordinated to the logic of the market or to the monolithic state entities of the past      Escaping the Energy Poverty Trap Michael Aklin, Patrick Bayer, S.P. Harish, Johannes

Urpelainen, 2018-11-27 The first comprehensive political science account of energy poverty arguing that governments can improve energy access for their citizens through appropriate policy design In today's industrialized world almost everything we do consumes energy While industrialized countries enjoy all the amenities of modern energy more than a billion people in the developing world still lack energy access Why is energy poverty persistent in some countries and not in others Offering the first comprehensive political science account of energy poverty Escaping the Energy Poverty Trap explores why governments have or have not been able to lead in providing modern energy to their least advantaged citizens Focusing on access to modern cooking fuels and household electrification the authors develop a new political economic theory that introduces government interest institutional capacity and local accountability as key determinants of energy access They draw on case studies from India East Asia Africa and Latin America to offer the optimistic conclusion that governments can improve institutional capacity and local accountability through appropriate policy design Energy poverty is a policy problem the authors assert and engaging with it as such offers new opportunities not only for ensuring equal energy access but also for political economic and environmental development      Energy Services for the World's Poor Energy Sector

Management Assistance Programme, 2000 Access to efficient sustainable energy services and sectoral reforms that facilitate efficiency and improved access have a key role to play in alleviating poverty in developing countries The central objective of the Energy and Development Report 2000 will be to cast light on this linkage and to inform and stimulate debate on the agenda for making energy policies and energy reforms increasingly effective in reaching low income households The focus of the Report is three fold A review of the state of play and role of access to efficient sustainable energy services in poverty alleviation and the role of energy sector reforms in this context reform elements that can assist in improving service options for the poor including a survey of promising technological and institutional developments in the sector and case studies of promising innovative approaches a summary discussion of key policy instruments and challenges in implementing an increasingly pro poor energy reform agenda      Energy Resources in Bangladesh Sakib Bin Amin, Saanjaana

Rahman, 2018-11-28 This book discusses the energy issues facing Bangladesh specifically the lack of access to electricity that impedes overall development In depth chapters examine critical energy problems and provide possible solutions including energy conversion and energy efficiency and the utilization of energy reform strategies for further development of the energy sector This book is useful to students and practitioners seeking a clearer understanding of contemporary energy issues energy markets and their sustainable development including modern technologies for energy conversion from waste and strategies for efficiency It presents thought provoking ideas and strategies to help Bangladesh achieve Sustainable Development Goals SDGs and transition to an upper middle income country by 2021 through the utilization of proper energy policies

Poverty Alleviation, 2008 Poverty is a social fact of life for billions of people around the world The developed countries abhor poverty or seem to for several reasons Perhaps it is a blotch on their consciences Perhaps there is a genuine desire to help those who are not prospering while others around them are Perhaps they wish to pay lip service to the good cause of eliminating either poverty or the poor whichever comes first This new book brings together new economic research on programs and policies related to poverty and its elimination or alleviation around the globe

A Global Green New Deal Edward B. Barbier, 2010-05-06 Meeting the short run challenges of reviving the worldwide economy need not mean sacrificing long run economic and environmental sustainability A Global Green New Deal GGND is an economic policy strategy for ensuring a more economically and environmentally sustainable world economic recovery Reviving growth and creating jobs should be essential objectives But policies should also aim to reduce carbon dependency protect ecosystems and water resources and alleviate poverty Otherwise economic recovery today will do little to avoid future economic and environmental crises Part One argues why a GGND strategy is essential to the sustainability of the global economy Part Two provides an overview of the key national policies whilst Part Three focuses on the global actions necessary to allow national policies to work Part Four summarizes the main recommendations for national and international action and discusses the wider implications for restructuring the world economy towards greener development

Power for Development Fernando Reyes Manibog, Rafael Dominguez, Stephan Wegner, 2003-01-01 This publication evaluates the performance of the World Bank Group WBG during the 1990s in promoting private sector development in the electric power sector in 80 countries Main findings include that where countries showed a commitment to advancing reforms in promoting private sector development and where programmes were properly implemented the expected benefits were delivered However quality of outcomes depended on the objectives pursued and on types of assistance provided with most countries remaining in the early stages of reform

Perspectives for Decentralized Energy Supply Martina Schäfer, 2011 Global Issues for Global Citizens Vinay Kumar Bhargava, 2006-01-01 Written by 27 World Bank experts this book draws on the Bank's unique global capabilities and experience to promote an understanding of key global issues that cannot be solved by any one nation alone in an increasingly interconnected world. It describes the forces that are shaping public and private action to address these issues and highlights the Bank's own work in these areas. Covering four broad themes: global economy, global human development, global environment, and global governance, this comprehensive volume provides an introduction to today's most pressing global issues from poverty.

Transforming Power John Byrne, Noah Toly, Leigh Glover, 2011-12-31 In 1934 Lewis Mumford critiqued the industrial energy system as a key source of authoritarian economic and political tendencies in modern life. Recent debate continues to engage issues of energy authoritarianism, focusing on the contest between energy-driven globalization, the spread of energy deregulation, and the simultaneous consolidation of the oil, coal, and gas industries, and the so-called sustainable energy strategy that celebrates the local and community-scale characteristics of renewable energy. Including theoretical inquiries and case studies by distinguished writers, Transforming Power is divided into three parts: Energy, Environment, and Society; The Politics of Conventional Energy; and The Politics of Sustainable Energy. It interrogates current contemporary energy assumptions, exploring the reflexive relationship between energy, environment, and society, and examining energy as a social project. Some of these have promised a prosperous future founded upon technological advances that further modernize the modern energy system, such as inherently safe nuclear power, environmentally friendly coal gasification, and the advent of a wealthier, cleaner world powered by fuel cells and the green technologies said by advocates to prefigure a revival of human-scale development, local self-determination, and a commitment to ecological balance. This volume offers a timely engagement of the social issues surrounding energy conflicts and contradictions. It will be of interest to policymakers, energy and environmental experts, sociologists, and historians of technology.

Accounting for Poverty in Infrastructure Reform Antonio Estache, Vivien Foster, Quentin Wodon, 2002 Annotation: This book provides practical guidelines and options for infrastructure reform that result in access and affordability for the poor. It includes a new model for reform that consists of three main components: policies, regulation, and provision, which, when properly balanced, minimize the risks associated with reform.

Rural Development Issues Arnold V. Burlingham, 2008 Rural development is a crucial issue throughout the world. Key issues include farming and forestry, land use, and the management of natural resources. In addition, economic diversification in rural communities is at the centre of many programs across the globe.

Global Sustainable Development and Renewable Energy Systems Olla, Phillip, 2012-05-31 Over the past decade, the use of Renewable Energy Technology (RET) has significantly increased around the globe. Technologies that once were considered experimental are now being deployed on commercial scales at phenomenal rates, delivering cost-effective substitutions for conventional fossil-fuel-based systems that cause problems including greenhouse gas emissions, expensive operating costs, and global pollution. But these new systems come at a costly rate and because of this officials must review their overall efficiency and effectiveness Global Sustainable Development and Renewable Energy Systems pushes through the boundaries of current research to introduce the concept of an energy management information system exploring the role of energy for sustainable development This book goes into great detail describing the benefits of these systems for organizations focusing on corporate sustainability initiatives and activities to combat climate change Research presented in this publication includes modeling techniques software applications and case studies that reveal how renewable energy sources such as wind solar and biomass fuel can have a significant implications for both operating costs and environmental impacts Attacking Poverty, 2000 At the start of each decade the World Development Report focuses on poverty reduction The World Development Report now in its twenty third edition proposes an empowerment security opportunity framework of action to reduce poverty in the first decades of the twenty first century It views poverty as a multidimensional phenomenon arising out of complex interactions between assets markets and institutions This Report shows how the experience of poverty reduction in the last fifteen years has been remarkably diverse and how this experience has provided useful lessons as well as warnings against simplistic universal policies and interventions It shows how current global trends present extraordinary opportunities for poverty reduction but also cause extraordinary risks including growing inequality marginalization and social explosions The World Development Report 2000 2001 explores the challenge of managing these risks in order to make the most of the opportunities for poverty reduction Energy Security Carlos Pascual, Jonathan Elkind, 2010-03-01 Energy security has become a top priority issue for the United States and countries around the globe but what does the term energy security really mean For many it is assuring the safe supply and transport of energy as a matter of national security For others it is developing and moving toward sustainable and low carbon energy sources to avoid environmental catastrophe while still others prioritize affordability and abundance of supply The demand for energy has ramifications in every part of the globe from growing demand in Asia to the pursuit of reserves in Latin America and Africa to the increased clout of energy producing states such as Russia and Iran Yet the fact remains that the vast majority of global energy production still comes from fossil fuels and it will take a thorough understanding of the interrelationships of complex challenges finite supply environmental concerns political and religious conflict and economic volatility to develop policies that will lead to true energy security In Energy Security Brookings scholars present a realistic cross disciplinary look at the American and global quests for energy security within the context of these geopolitical economic and environmental challenges For example political analysts Pietro Nivola and Erin Carter wrap their arms around just what it means to be energy independent and whether that is an advisable or even feasible goal Suzanne Maloney addresses Energy Security in the Persian Gulf Opportunities and Challenges while economist Jason Bordoff and energy analyst Bryan Mignone trace the links between climate policies and energy access policies Carlos Pascual and his colleagues examine delicate geopolitical issues Assuring long term energy security remains one of the industrialized world's most pressing priorities but steps in that direction have been controversial and often dangerous and results thus far have been tenuous In this insightful volume Brookings
