End to Innocence Sheldon Kopp,1983-04      An End to Innocence Sheldon Kopp,1981      Free Will and Illusion

Saul Smilansky,2000-03-30 Saul Smilansky presents an original treatment of the problem of free will which lies at the heart of morality and human self understanding He maintains that we have most of the resources we need for a proper understanding of the problem and the key to it is the role played by illusion The major traditional philosophical approaches are inadequate Smilansky argues their partial insights need to be integrated into a hybrid view which he calls Fundamental Dualism Common views about justice responsibility human worth and related notions are radically misguided and the absurd looms large We do however find some justification for enlightened moral views and grounding for some of our most cherished views of human nature The bold and perhaps disturbing claim of Free Will and Illusion is that we could not live adequately with a complete awareness of the truth about human freedom illusion lies at the centre of the human condition The necessity of illusion is seen to follow from the basic elements of the free will issue helping keep our moral and psychological worlds intact Smilansky offers the challenge of recognizing the centrality of illusion and trying to free ourselves to some extent from it this is not only a philosophical challenge but a moral and psychological one as well      The Divorced Dad Dilemma Gerald S. Mayer,2000-11-02 At last the confused and hurt father experiencing the loss of marriage family life and routine contact with his children can find calm and loving guidance in how to live in changed circumstances So much written about divorce and single parenting is addressed to women Until recently a caring father has had relatively little guidance for his conduct in the painful process of dismantling a traditional family and establishing a new basis for relating to his former spouse and his children Gerald S Mayer in The Divorced Dad Dilemma provides this critically needed guidance in an authoratative gentle and thorough manner      Fairbairn's Object Relations Theory in the Clinical Setting David P. Celani,2010-04-07 W R D Fairbairn 1889 1964 challenged the dominance of Freud s drive theory with a psychoanalytic theory based on the internalization of human relationships Fairbairn assumed that the unconscious develops in childhood and contains dissociated memories of parental neglect insensitivity and outright abuse that are impossible the children to tolerate consciously In Fairbairn s model these dissociated memories protect developing children from recognizing how badly they are being treated and allow them to remain attached even to physically abusive parents Attachment is paramount in Fairbairn s model as he recognized that children are absolutely and unconditionally dependent on their parents Kidnapped children who remain attached to their abusive captors despite opportunities to escape illustrate this intense dependency even into adolescence At the heart of Fairbairn s model is a structural theory that organizes actual relational events into three self and object pairs one conscious pair the central ego which relates exclusively to the ideal object in the external world and two mostly unconscious pairs the child s antilibidinal ego which relates exclusively to the rejecting parts of the object and the child s libidinal ego which relates exclusively to the exciting parts of the object The two dissociated self and object pairs remain in the unconscious but can emerge and suddenly take over the individual's central ego. When they emerge, the other is misperceived as either an exciting or a rejecting object, thus turning these internal structures into a source of transferences and reenactments. Fairbairn's central defense mechanism, splitting, is the fast shift from central ego dominance to either the libidinal ego or the antilibidinal ego, a near perfect model of the borderline personality disorder. In this book, David Celani reviews Fairbairn's five foundational papers and outlines their application in the clinical setting. He discusses the four unconscious structures and offers the clinician concrete suggestions on how to recognize and respond to them effectively in the heat of the clinical interview. Incorporating decades of experience into his analysis, Celani emphasizes the internalization of the therapist as a new good object and devotes entire sections to the treatment of histrionic, obsessive, and borderline personality disorders.

Leaving Home David Celani, 2011. Relinquishing family attachments that failed to meet childhood needs is the most difficult task individuals can undertake as they grow into adulthood. Leaving Home not only emphasizes the life-saving benefits of separating from toxic parents but also offers a viable program for personal emancipation. David P. Celani centers his program on Object Relations Theory, a branch of psychoanalysis developed by Scottish analyst Ronald Fairbairn. The human personality, Fairbairn argued, is not the result of inherited and thus immutable instincts. Rather, the developing child builds internal relational templates rooted in conscious and unconscious memories he internalized in childhood, and these guide his future interactions with others. While an attachment to neglectful or even abusive parents is not uncommon, there is a way out. Eloquent, relatable, and filled with rich examples taken from more than two decades of clinical practice, Leaving Home outlines the practical steps necessary to become a healthy adult.

A View from the Cosmic Mirror Gary Gemmill, 2010-10-26. All of us have hidden parts within us. These are the things about ourselves that we do not see: our haunting darkness and our illuminating light. We often hide from our own flaws. But we also can hide from our own undeveloped talents and vital spirit. Most of us would like to discover a more whole and complete self. To do this, we must clearly see the accurate reflection of ourselves in the people and objects around us. What it takes is to discover our unseen but true reflection in the cosmic mirror. Come join us. Begin your journey down a new path. In this fascinating self-empowerment guide, coauthors Gary Gemmill, Ph.D., and George Kraus, Ph.D., provide a template for our transformation and growth. One of the most important books of our generation. In a word, powerful. Clearly illustrates the profundity and absurdity of our relationships with others. Takes the reader beyond the polarities of our conflicts with others to a place of renewal and hope for a more unified and peaceful world. Philip Lichtenberg, Ph.D., Director of the Gestalt Therapy Institute of Philadelphia and author of Encountering Bigotry, Befriending, Projecting, Persons in Everyday Life.
