facing contemporary society      (Un)Learning to Be Human? Stefan Herbrechter, 2024-09-23 Critical posthumanism is a theory paradigm that has become hugely influential across the humanities and social sciences in the last twenty years This volume collects essays written over the last decade by one of the founders and leading figures of this movement Originally a reaction to accelerated technological and media change that challenges traditional notions of what it means to be human posthumanism as opposed to transhumanism has developed into a general critique and reappraisal of life after humanism and anthropocentrism The essays collected here are dealing with aspects of education technology politics media and art and share a focus on how to critique and unlearn traditional understandings of humanness and re learn what it means to be human differently      Educating for Meaningful Lives Scott Webster, 2009-01-01 Why are students becoming disengaged from schooling Many teachers administrators and designers of policy and curriculum are expressing concern over this issue Current approaches to schooling are dominated by a perceived need to enable learners to particulate in the knowledge economy Both knowledge and learning how to learn knowledge have become the primary discourses in schooling rather than education School curricula rarely offer any sense of personal significance and for many learners such an approach to the curriculum is meaningless Educating for meaningful lives must be a central aim for educative curricula This book offers curriculum designers and teachers a greater understanding of this relation that education has with living significantly meaningful lives and it does so through the notion of existential spirituality Spirituality is not to be reduced to something religious but rather pertains to how a life is lived An existential perspective enables the meaningfulness of life to provide the necessary significance which is required of a curriculum if it is to be understood as offering personal meaning for learners Approaching the design and teaching of curricula through this perspective of existential spirituality enables learners to live a meaningful life in an uncertain world      Re-Humanising Shakespeare Andrew Mousley, 2015-03-03 Revised throughout the book includes a new introduction which focuses attention on what is specific to literature s treatment of the human as epitomised by Shakespeare a section drawing on new work on literary genres as different forms of engagement      Herman Melville and the American Calling William V. Spanos, 2009-07-01 Argues that Herman Melville s later work anticipates the resurgence of an American exceptionalist ethos underpinning the U S led global war on terror      Understanding Curriculum Scott Webster, Ann Ryan, 2019-01-17 Understanding Curriculum is a critical introduction to contemporary curriculum theory and practice Substantially revised the second edition includes more detailed consideration of the ideological underpinnings of curriculum development features new chapters on assessment and reporting and updated vignettes and extracts These features combined with all the elements of the previous edition encourages readers to reflect on how curriculum theory can inform and enhance classroom practice      Avatar Bodies Ann Weinstone, 2004      Toward a Non-humanist Humanism William V. Spanos, 2017-07-31 In his book The End of Education Toward Posthumanism William V Spanos critiqued the traditional Western concept of humanism arguing that its origins are to be found not in ancient Greece s love of truth and wisdom but in the Roman imperial era when those Greek values were adapted in the service of imperialism on a deeply rooted metaphysical level Returning to that question of humanism in the context of the United States war on terror in the post 9 11 era Toward a Non humanist Humanism points out the dehumanizing dynamics of Western modernity in which the rule of law is increasingly made flexible to defend against threats both real and potential Spanos considers and assesses the work of thinkers such as Giorgio Agamben Alain Badiou Judith Butler Jacques Rancière and Slavoj Žižek as humanistic reformers and concludes with an effort to imagine a different kind of humanism a non humanist humanism in which the old binary of friend versus foe gives way to a coming community without ethnic cultural or sexual divisions (Post)Critical

Methodologies: The Science Possible After the Critiques Patti Lather, 2017-02-03 In the World Library of Educationalists series international experts themselves compile career long collections of what they judge to be their finest pieces extracts from books key articles salient research findings major theoretical and practical contributions so the world can read them in a single manageable volume Readers will be able to follow the themes and strands and see how their work contributes to the development of the field Post Critical Methodologies forms a chronology through the texts and concepts that span Patti Lather's career Examining post critical feminist and poststructural theories Lather's work is organized into thematic sections that span her 35 years of study in this field These sections include original contributions formed from Lather's feminism and critical theory background They contain her most cited works on feminist research and pedagogy and form a collection of both early and recent writings on the post and post post with a focus on critical policy studies and the future of post qualitative work With a focus on the implications for qualitative inquiry given the call for scientifically based research in education this compelling overview moves through Lather's progressive thoughts on bridging the gap between quantitative and qualitative research in education and provides a unique commentary on some of the most important issues in higher education over the last 30 years This compilation of Lather's contribution to educational thinking will prove compelling reading to all those engaged in student learning in higher education worldwide America's Shadow William V. Spanos, 2000 A study of imperialism that stretches from ancient Rome to the post Cold War World this provocative work boldly revises our assumptions about the genealogy of the West Rather than locating its source in classical Greece William V. Spanos argues we should look to ancient Rome which first articulated the ideas that would become fundamental to the West's imperial project These founding ideas he claims have informed the American national identity and its foreign policy from its origins The Vietnam War is at the center of this book In the contradiction between the free world logic employed to justify U.S. intervention in Vietnam and the genocidal practices used to realize that logic Spanos finds the culmination of an imperialistic discourse reaching back to the colonizing rationale of the Roman Empire Spanos identifies the language of expansion in the white metaphors in Western philosophical discourse since the colonization of Greek thought by the Romans He shows how these metaphors and their role in metaphysical discourse have long been complicit in the violence of imperialism      Towards Posthumanism in Education Jessie A. Bustillos Morales, Shiva Zarabadi, 2024-05-14 This edited volume presents a post humanist reflection on education mapping the complex transdisciplinary pedagogy and theoretical research while also addressing questions related to marginalised voices colonial discourses and the relationship between theory and practice Exhibiting a re imagination of education through themed relationalities that can transverse education this cutting edge book highlights the importance of matter in educational environments enriching pedagogies teacher student relationships and curricular innovation Chapters present contributions that explore education through various international contexts and educational sectors unravelling educational implications with reference to the climate change crisis migrant children in education post pandemic education feminist activists and other emergent issues The book examines the ongoing iterations of the entanglement of colonisation modernity and humanity with education to propose a possibility of education capable of upholding heterogeneous worlds Curated with a global perspective on transversal relationalities and offering a unique outlook on posthuman thoughts and actions related to education this book will be an important reading for students researchers and academics in the fields of philosophy of education sociology of education posthumanism and new materialism curriculum studies and educational research      The Legacy of Edward W. Said William V. Spanos, 2010-10-01

With the untimely death of Edward W Said in 2003 various academic and public intellectuals worldwide have begun to reassess the writings of this powerful oppositional intellectual Figures on the neoconservative right have already begun to discredit Said s work as that of a subversive intent on slandering America s benign global image and undermining its global authority On the left a significant number of oppositional intellectuals are eager to counter this neoconservative vilification proffering a Said who in marked opposition to the anti humanism of the great poststructuralist thinkers who were his contemporaries Jacques Derrida Jean Francois Lyotard Jacques Lacan Louis Althusser and Michel Foucault reaffirms humanism and thus rejects poststructuralist theory In this provocative assessment of Edward Said s lifework William V Spanos argues that Said s lifelong anti imperialist project is actually a fulfillment of the revolutionary possibilities of poststructuralist theory Spanos examines Said his legacy and the various texts he wrote including Orientalism Culture and Imperialism and Humanism and Democratic Criticism that are now being considered for their lasting political impact

Posthumanist Learning Cathrine Hasse, 2020-01-03 In this text Hasse presents a new inclusive posthuman learning theory designed to keep up with the transformations of human learning resulting from new technological experiences as well as considering the expanding role of cyborg devices and robots in learning This ground breaking book draws on research from across psychology education and anthropology to present a truly interdisciplinary examination of the relationship between technology learning and humanity Posthumanism questions the self evident status of human beings by exploring how technology is changing what can be categorised as human In this book the author applies a posthumanist lens to traditional learning theory challenging conventional understanding of what a human learner is and considering how technological advances are changing how we think about this question Throughout the book Hasse uses vignettes of her own research and that of other prominent academics to exemplify what technology can tell us about how we learn and how this can be observed in real life settings Posthumanist Learning is essential reading for students and researchers of posthumanism and learning theory from a variety of backgrounds including psychology education anthropology robotics and philosophy
