Margi Prideaux, 2017-03-16 The world is entering a period of unprecedented environmental and political change. By mid-century climate change will cause dramatic ecosystem shifts. Hundreds if not thousands of species will disappear from the earth including icons like polar bears, gorillas, Asiatic lions, and bluefin tuna. For many cultures, species are place. As our cultivated global community erodes, international triage decisions about species and local ecosystems will commence, and if we are not alert, these decisions will be made on our collective behalf without local perspective or accountability. Global Environmental Governance: Civil Society and Wildlife illuminates a clear pathway for the environmental non-governmental community to transition into a co-governance role. Many NGO diplomats have deeper experience and more technical knowledge about policy discussions than their government counterparts and are unburdened by sovereign constraints. The book puts forward the perspectives of developing world civil society and the case that it must play a more significant role in future decision making. Civil society from around the world must be welcomed by governments at the global environmental governance table if we are to hear birdsong after the storm.
