Endangered Minds Jane M. Healy, 2011-07-19 Is today's fast paced media culture creating a toxic environment for our children's brains In this landmark bestselling assessment tracing the roots of America's escalating crisis in education Jane M Healy Ph D examines how television video games and other components of popular culture compromise our children's ability to concentrate and to absorb and analyze information Drawing on neuropsychological research and an analysis of current educational practices Healy presents in clear understandable language How growing brains are physically shaped by experience Why television programs even supposedly educational shows like Sesame Street develop habits of mind that place children at a disadvantage in school Why increasing numbers of children are diagnosed with attention deficit disorder How parents and teachers can make a critical difference by making children good learners from the day they are born

Endangered Minds Jane M. Healy, 1990      Shades of Loneliness Richard Stivers, 2004-02-09 To varying degrees loneliness has us all in its grip In this incisive and controversial book Richard Stivers rejects the recent emphasis on genetic explanations of psychological problems arguing that the very organization of technological societies is behind the pervasive experience of loneliness The extreme rationality that governs our institutions and organizations results in abstract and impersonal relationships in much of daily life Moreover as common meaning is gradually eroded our connections to others become vague and tenuous Our ensuing fear and loneliness however can be masked by an outgoing extroverted personality In its extreme form loneliness assumes pathological dimensions in neurosis and schizophrenia Stivers maintains that even here the causes remain social The various forms of neuroses and psychoses follow the key contradictions of a technological society For instance narcissism and depression reflect the tension between power and meaninglessness that characterizes modern societies Stivers demonstrates that there is a continuum from the normal technological personality through the various neuroses to full blown schizophrenia He argues that all forms of loneliness emanate from the same cause they likewise share a common dynamic despite their differences Loneliness in its many manifestations seems to be the price we must pay for living in the modern world Yet nurturing family friend and community ties can mitigate its culturally and psychologically disorganizing power This book is a clarion call for a renewal of moral awareness and custom to combat the fragmentation and depersonalization of our technological civilization      Learning with the Brain in Mind Frank

McNeil, 2008-12-18 Excellent a wonderful readable summary of what the educational world really needs to know about neuroscience Sue Palmer Literacy consultant and author of Toxic Childhood During the past few decades we've seen an explosion of information about the human brain Sorting through the research and determining which findings have applications in the classroom is a daunting prospect Fortunately Frank McNeil has undertaken this task doing an excellent job Clearly written immediately practical this is one of the best books I've read in the field It belongs on every teacher's and administrator's desk Pat Wolfe Ed D Author of Brain Matters Translating Research to Classroom Practice and President of

Mind Matters Inc Learning with the Brain in Mind offers a fresh approach to teaching exploring recent findings in neuroscience and combining them with learning in three crucial and interconnected ways Attention Emotions and Memory Attention is the foundation for intellectual development as part of an essential survival strategy Emotional relationships are the basis for brain growth and provide the foundations for acquiring cognitive and social skills Memory has important influences on the sense of self and therefore on learning The book provides evidence of the controversial impacts of diet television and mineral supplements on learning both at school and at home examples from three research studies offering insights into pupils attitudes to life and learning in school practical strategies that will help pupils to learn in more effective ways Promoting new thinking about learning and considering innovative strategies that arise from our understanding of how the brain works this book will help teachers parents and other educators enhance children s learning Frank McNeil was Director of the National School Improvement Network at the Institute of education and a former Headteacher Principal Inspector for an outer London LEA and an Ofsted Registered inspector

The Sibling Society Robert Bly,1997-05-27 Where have all the grownups gone In answering that question with the same freewheeling erudition and intuitive brilliance that made Iron John a national bestseller poet storyteller and translator Robert Bly tells us that we live in a sibling society in which adults have regressed into adolescence and adolescents refuse to grow up

Invasion of the Mind Snatchers Eric Burns,2010-06-17 When the first television was demonstrated in 1927 a headline in The New York Times read Like a Photo Come to Life It was a momentous occasion But the power of television wasn t fully harnessed until the 1950s when the medium was as Eric Burns says At its most preoccupying its most life altering And Burns a former NBC News correspondent who is an Emmy winner for his broadcast writing knows about the impact of television Invasion of the Mind Snatchers chronicles the influence of television that was watched daily by the baby boomer generation As kids became spellbound by Howdy Doody and The Ed Sullivan Show Burns reveals they often acted out their favorite programs Likewise they purchased the merchandise being promoted by performers and became fascinated by the personalities they saw on screen often emulating their behavior It was the first generation raised by TV and Burns looks at both the promise of broadcasting as espoused by the inventors and how that promise was both redefined and lost by the corporations who helped to spread the technology Yet Burns also contextualizes the social cultural and political events that helped shape the Fifties from Sputnik and the Rosenberg trial to Senator Joseph McCarthy s Red Scare In doing so he charts the effect of television on politics religion race and sex and how the medium provided a persuasive message to the young impressionable viewers

The Media Creates Us in Its Image and Other Essays on Technology and Culture Richard Stivers,2020-03-31 The Media Creates Us in Its Image and Other Essays on Technology and Culture proposes that modern technology seriously influences every aspect of culture and personality Technology shapes our beliefs and values and even how we think of ourselves It affects religion morality education language communication and sexual identity Every institution every organization is brought under its purview This book attempts to awaken the reader to the destructive side of modern technology that exists side by side with its constructive side What modern technology is destroying however is the very meaning of being human The essay The Media Creates Us in Its Image makes this case most dramatically The book asks the reader the following question Is what you have gained from the use of modern technology more important than what you have lost How do we once again bring technology under our control in the face of its inexorable progress

Technology as Magic Richard Stivers, Peter Stirk, 2001-08-01 What gives the mass media particularly advertising and television their extraordinary power over our lives so that even the most jaded and sophisticated among us are troubled and fascinated by their allure The secret according to Richard Stivers in this brilliant new book lies in the curious relationship between technology and magic Stivers argues the two are now related to one another in such a way that each has taken on important characteristics of the other His contention is that our expectations for technology have become magical to the point that they have generated a multitude of imitation technologies that function as magical practices These imitation technologies flourish in the fields of psychology management administration and the mass media and their paramount purpose in human adjustment and control Advertising and television programs in particular contain the key magical rituals of our civilization In a fascinating analysis of television programming Stivers shows how various genres news sports game shows soap operas sitcoms etc have their distinct mythological symbols Through dramatized information they symbolically connect consumer goods and services to desired outcomes the utopian goals of success happiness and health thus enveloping technology both real and imitation in a magical cocoon

The Flickering Mind Todd Oppenheimer, 2004-12-07 The Flickering Mind by National Magazine Award winner Todd Oppenheimer is a landmark account of the failure of technology to improve our schools and a call for renewed emphasis on what really works American education faces an unusual moment of crisis For decades our schools have been beaten down by a series of curriculum fads empty crusades for reform and stingy funding Now education and political leaders have offered their biggest and most expensive promise ever the miracle of computers and the Internet at a cost of approximately 70 billion just during the decade of the 1990s Computer technology has become so prevalent that it is transforming nearly every corner of the academic world from our efforts to close the gap between rich and poor to our hopes for school reform to our basic methods of developing the human imagination Technology is also recasting the relationships that schools strike with the business community changing public beliefs about the demands of tomorrow's working world and reframing the nation's systems for researching testing and evaluating achievement All this change has led to a culture of the flickering mind and a generation teetering between two possible futures In one youngsters have a chance to become confident masters of the tools of their day to better address the problems of tomorrow Alternatively they can become victims of commercial novelties and narrow measures of ability underscored by misplaced faith in standardized testing At this point America's students can't even make a fair choice They are an increasingly distracted lot Their ability to reason to listen to feel empathy is quite literally flickering Computers and their attendant technologies did not cause all these problems but they are quietly accelerating them In this authoritative and impassioned account of the state of education in America Todd Oppenheimer shows why it does not have to be this way Oppenheimer visited dozens of schools nationwide public and private urban and rural to present the compelling tales that frame this book He consulted with experts read volumes of studies and came to strong and persuasive conclusions that the essentials of learning have been gradually forgotten and that they matter much more than the novelties of technology He argues that every time we computerize a science class or shut down a music program to pay for new hardware we lose sight of what our priority should be enlightened basics Broad in scope and investigative in treatment The Flickering Mind will not only contribute to a vital public conversation about what our schools can and should be it will define the debate
