Gontarski,2016-10-27 Representing a profound engagement with the work of Samuel Beckett this volume gathers the very best of Stan Gontarski s Beckett criticism on practical theoretical and critical levels Such a range suggests a multiplicity of approaches to a body of work itself multiple produced by an artist who underwent any number of transformations and reinventions over his long writing career a Many of the essays collected here explore Beckett s debt to his age Beckett very much a product of a culture in transition which change he would help foster But much of Beckett s creative struggle was to find a new way his own way A Most of the essays that comprise this volume detail that struggle

Rewriting Magic Claire Fanger, 2015-06-18 In Rewriting Magic Claire Fanger explores a fourteenth century text called The Flowers of Heavenly Teaching Written by a Benedictine monk named John of Morigny the work all but disappeared from the historical record and it is only now coming to light again in multiple versions and copies While John's book largely comprises an extended set of prayers for gaining knowledge The Flowers of Heavenly Teaching is unusual among prayer books of its time because it includes a visionary autobiography with intimate information about the book's inspiration and composition Through the window of this record we witness how John reconstructs and reconsecrates a condemned liturgy for knowledge acquisition the ars notoria of Solomon John's work was the subject of intense criticism and public scandal and his book was burned as heretical in 1323 The trauma of these experiences left its imprint on the book but in unexpected and sometimes baffling ways Fanger decodes this imprint even as she relays the narrative of how she learned to understand it In engaging prose she explores the twin processes of knowledge acquisition in John's visionary autobiography and her own work of discovery as she reconstructed the background to his extraordinary book Fanger's approach to her subject exemplifies innovative historical inquiry research and methodology Part theology part historical anthropology part biblio-memoir Rewriting Magic relates a story that will have deep implications for the study of medieval life monasticism prayer magic and religion
