

5.1.11 State that energy transformations are never 100% efficient.

When energy is changed from one form into another, the transformation is never 100% efficient. This means that some energy will be changed into a form other than the intended form and will usually not be very useful.

The energy lost to the environment as heat needs to come from the food that the organism eats. This helps to explain why birds and mammals, which have a constant body temperature, need to eat much more per kg body mass than, for example, reptiles which do not.
