World Development Report, 1985, 1985 This report focuses on the contribution that international capital makes to economic development While the report pays close attention to the events of the recent past it also places the use of foreign capital in a broader and longer term perspective Using such a perspective the report shows how countries at different stages of development have used external finance productively how the institutional and policy environment affects the volume and composition of financial flows to developing countries and how the international community has dealt with financial crises This report concludes that the developing countries will have a continuing need for external finance It demonstrates that many of the policies required to attract external finance and promote economic growth are either being implemented or planned already

Economic Breakthrough and Recovery Jeffrey R Cornwall, David C. Colander, 2016-09-16 This study of macroeconomics combines treatment of opposing theories with a presentation of evidence to point the way toward a reconstructed macro research and policy programme

Policy Issues in the Evolving

International Monetary System Mr. Peter Isard, Mr. Paul R. Masson, Mr. Morris Goldstein, Mr. Mark P. Taylor, 1992-06-15 How can international monetary stability be promoted This study looks at ways to bolster economic policies and coordination among the industrial countries serving as nominal anchors for the world economy It also assesses the operation of monetary unions and common currency areas The authors conclude that problems with the world monetary system reflect weaknesses outside the exchange rate arena and that exchange rate commitments must be tailored to individual country characteristics
