CLIVE JAMES

Einstein shunned it. Madonna courts it every day of her life. Marilyn Monroe and Elvis Presley were its victims. FAME. But just why do people become famous? What does it mean to achieve stardom now?

As in his highly successful television series, Clive James examines how the concept of fame has evolved in the course of the 20th Century with the rise of the media monster, discussing the theory that now people are famous more for who they are rather than for what they have done. All the key figures of this century are here along with the inimitable Clive James at his best.
