Familial Cancer and Prevention Joji Utsunomiya, John J. Mulvihill, Walter Weber, 1999-04-27 A New Strategy Toward Cancer Control Still in its infancy the familial hereditary approach to cancer control is proving to be one of the most potent strategies in the war on cancer Over the past few years the human genome project has generated an abundance of valuable information on the genetic origins of a range of cancers Tests now exist for several hereditary tumor promoting genetic mutations including those found in BRCA genes associated with breast cancer as well as mutations of HNPCC genes which have been linked to colon cancers and many more are anticipated in the near future Armed with the information yielded by these tests physicians have already saved countless lives through preventative counseling early detection and more highly focused intervention strategies Inspired by the proceedings of the UICC 1997 Symposium on Familial Cancer and Prevention held in Kobe Japan this volume provides clinicians and researchers with a detailed review of the latest developments at the front lines of the familial cancer prevention movement In a series of edited contributions leading researchers and clinicians from around the globe summarize their experiences and analyze current and emerging trends in Information gathering and history taking Risk assessment Genetic testing for colorectal endocrine breast and other familial cancers Diagnosis prognosis and management of an array of familial cancers Genetic counseling for familial cancers Up to date authoritative and comprehensive Familial Cancer and Prevention is an important working resource for clinicians cancer researchers and epidemiologists

Chemoprevention of Cancer H.-J. Senn, Alberto Costa, Craig Jordan, 2012-12-06 Pharmacologic interventions to prevent the evolution of human cancers are still in its infancy although a good number of mostly controlled clinical studies have been performed in the past two decades However regarding the partially stagnating therapeutic results of major epithelial cancer types such as breast lung colon and ENT cancer types the problem of interference with the evolution of disease at a preclinical level is an intriguing one and the field seems to develop into one of the fastest growing domains of modern oncology This process is facilitated by the developments of molecular oncogenetics and the growing existence of family cancer units allowing to better identify and inform respective high risk groups thus enabling researchers and clinicians to more realistically target their chemopreventive efforts to the true populations at risk On this changing background the newly formed International Society of Cancer Chemoprevention ISCaC together with the Swiss Cancer League and the Interdisciplinary Oncology Center of St Gallen Switzerland organized an international Symposium in September 1997 inviting basic researchers epidemiologists and clinical oncologists of related disciplines to discuss pertinent issues of experimental and clinical chemo and bio prevention in a scientific workshop
